NEW YORK, July 17.—Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former director of the now defunct NRA, declared in an interview today that "if the present adverse trends continue, the re-election of President Roosevelt is extremely doubtful."

Johnson, who is a Democrat, said that if the presidential election were held today, Mr. Roosevelt probably would be re-elected. But, he added, "the breaks have been against Roosevelt the last two or three months.

Adverse Breaks

He cited the adverse "breaks" as:

Dr. Townsend Accuses Gomer Smith Of Seeking To Disrupt Convention

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CONVENTION HALL, CLEVELAND, O., July 17.—Moving to halt the political row in the Townsend old-age pension convention, Chairman Frank A. Arbuckle of California today ruled out of order motions for endorsement of political parties by resolution.

The action, concurred in by Dr. F. E. Townsend, Messiash of the old-age pension movement, and the board of directors, was said by one leader to be due to a drive by southern members to obtain adoption of a resolution favorable to President Roosevelt.

Conversely, leaders in the anti-third party group asserted that to met their demands that the $200-a-month pension movement be kept non-political.

"Convention Non-Partisan"

Chairman Arbuckle said:

"In view of the fact that we have had liberal discussion concerning the national political situation including the subject of political parties and presidential candidates and in order to relieve the minds of the delegates in this great convention to re-emphasize the fact this convention is non-partisan in all its political activities, the chair rules:

"That inasmuch as this is not a political party convention but a convention of delegates of Townsend clubs gathered from all over our nation, that any motion or resolution having to do with the endorsement of a national political party shall be out of order at all times during this convention."

Landon Unable to Speak

A telegram from Gov. Alfred M. Landon, politely declining an invitation to speak to the convention, was read as follows:

"I appreciate your courteous invitation to speak before your convention but it will be impossible for me to make any address of this kind until after my acceptance of the nomination.

(Signed) "Alf M. Landon".

The convention expected to receive replies from similar invitations extended to President Roosevelt and Norman Thomas, the Socialist presidential candidate.

As the youthful monarch resumed his state duties, calm and unperturbed by his narrow escape, Britain's famous crime investigation bureau issued the following communique:

CINCINNATI, July 17. — Doctor Townsends convention represents numerically impressive groups that have given up any hope of reaching their objectives through either of the major parties but are still firmly determined to keep their programs to the fore in the coming campaign.

The leadership and the rank and file of the Townsend, Smith and Coughlin movements is made up of people who took Mr. Roosevelt literally when he said that he was going to drive the money changers from the temple and make the poor richer. His defy to "economic royalists" leaves them cold. They now have no more confidence in what he actually will do than a gathering of bankers and business men would have in another promise of a breathing spell.

McCarl was to explain to Landon his view of the highly complicated system of federal agencies in Washington, which he has charged waste millions of dollars of the taxpayers money. He will describe his proposed reforms in governmental operations to the Republican nominee for president. Both men were agreed in advance that administration of the federal government should give one hundred cents of service for every tax dollar.

Landon also planned to discuss the Illinois situation with Wayland Brooks, Republican nominee for governor and George Harding, Republican national committeeman from that state. The nominee went over the Illinois situation earlier in the week with his running mate, Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago. Ap-

Later, at York House, the king discussed arrangements for his coronation next May with the Duke of Norfolk. The Duke of York, brother of the monarch, was among other visitors received by the king.

Probe Communists

At the same time Scotland Yard continued its investigation among communists, radicals and other political extremists in search of a possible political plot against the king, while his personal advisors urged him to keep himself well protected at all times.

But the king's first care was to read messages that poured in from his well-wishers.

Fire Destroys Barn Thursday

Loss Of $1,500 Results From Fire In Union Township Yesterday Afternoon

Central firemen, manning the Pirsch truck, went to the farm of D. B. Vannatten, R. F. D. 2, Union township, shortly after 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, where they assisted in saving the Vannatten home, which was threatened with destruction, when a barn on the Vannatten place, cloes to the home, was destroyed with a loss of $1,500.

By the time firemen arrived, the barn was beyond control, and firemen turned their attention to keeping the house from catching fire, in which effort they were successful.

The fire is believed to have started from faulty electric wiring.

He insists its too hot to be working these days and his garden is dreary and brown, the weather's too much to help out his wife and he just couldn't walk into town. But suggest he play golf and the weather's forgot, he insists that its fine summer fun, so he swizzles and sweats as he wallops the ball, while the score stands at just ninety one.

Former Comptroller Confers With Landon

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOPEKA, Kas., July 17.—Two of the nation's best known authorities on governmental economy were to meet here today with John R. McCarl, former comptroller general, calling on Governor Alfred M. Landon.

McCarl was to explain to Landon his view of the highly complicated system of federal agencies in Washington, which he has charged waste millions of dollars of the taxpayers money. He will describe his proposed reforms in governmental operations to the Republican nominee for president. Both men were agreed in advance that administration of the federal government should give one hundred cents of service for every tax dollar.

To Discuss Illinois

MINNESOTA HAS HIGH DEATH TOLL

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 17.—A breath of cooler air from the north Pacific ocean will fan the drouth-stricken states of the northwest today, government forecaster J. R. Lloyd predicted here, while the mid-continent swelters under rising temperatures.

The Dakotas, Minnesota, Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska will benefit from the "cool front" the forecaster predicted, but he expected the cool wave would be dissipated by the masses of hot air piled up over the prairies of the drouth states and its eastward march halted.

One hundred-plus temperatures baked the northwest again yesterday as blasts of scorching heat carried on the awful carnage and discouraged farmers watched their once-lush fields literally turn to arid, desert wastes.

Many Dead In Minnesota

Minnesota's death toll neared the 1000 mark as temperatures hovered around the 100 graduation.

Minneapolis hospitals, taxed beyond capacity with heat victims, issued a public appeal for aid today. General hospital appealed for volunteers, asking that any nurses or men capable of serving as orderlies, volunteer their services to supplement the regular staff.

Moorhead, Minn., reported a maximum temperature of 104 degrees yesterday. It was 98 at Minneapolis.

Bismarck, No. Dak., reported a maximum of 110 degrees; Aberdeen, So. Dak., 109; Pierre, So. Dak., 112; Fremont, Neb., 108; Lincoln, Neb., 107; and Miles City, Mont., 100.

A ravishing sun continued to sizzle Iowa's corn crop. Temperatures throughout the state were generally 100-plus.

LUCKY FATE

A young man who had been wandering about the city hall for half an hour was getting despondent.

"I can't seem to find the marriage license clerk's office," he said aloud.

"You're very fortunate, I must say," commented a lounger.

The biggest of these purchases is the 900,000-acre Milk River project in Montana. Some 265,000 acres also also are being purchased to turn over to the U. S. bureau of Indian affairs to be added to the grazing lands for livestock of Indian tribes.

Fifteen migratory water fowl projects, involving purchase of 259,000 acres, also are being launched for the bureau of biological survey.

Four areas, involving purchase of 140,000 acres, also are being taken over for addition to the national parks.

One grazing project, covering 108,000 acres, and three water fowl refuges, totaling 71,800 acres, are being purchased in Nebraska.

In addition to WPA providing jobs and resettlement giving subsistence grants in the northwest drought area, resettlement will make loans to farmers for feed for their livestock in cases where they have a sufficient equity, or can obtain a waiver of claims from the holder of a mortgage.

Another visitor during the day will be William M. Chadbourne, New York attorney, who helped to manage the mayoralty campaign of Fiorella Laguardia two years ago. Chadbourne's Republican progressive, has endorsed Landon.

To Stress Economic Issue

Landon's conference with McCarl was taken here to indicate the Republican nominee plans to stress the economic issue in his acceptance speech July 23. This issue was emphasized in the Republican platform which pledged the party to "stop the folly of uncontrolled spending and balance the budget, not by increasing taxes but by cutting expenditures, drastically and immediately."

Landon himself has achieved a national reputation as the budget-balancing governor of Kansas. This record of the governor was stressed by his friends in the pre-convention campaign and helped win him the Republican nomination for president.

MOVE TO HALT POLITICAL ROW AT CONVENTION

ors to expulsion of Gomer Smith, Oklahoma Democrat, may bring action by Dr. Townsend.

Townsend was reported to be ready to go before the convention with a demand that his workers stand with him. He accused Gomer Smith of seeking to disrupt the convention in an attack upon the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith and Father Charles E. Coughlin, yesterday's guest speaker.

To Aid Of Smith

Many Townsendites, however, rushed to the defense of the Oklahoman. T. W. Glckel, of Alva, Okla., said that he presented a formal request to Chairman Arbuckle to use his influence to prevent ousting of Smith as vice president and a member of the board of directors.

The board favored postponement of any action until after the convention, with the expectation that efforts would be made to heal the breach.

Apparently pleased with the ruling of Chairman Arbuckle against political endorsements, the convention called upon youthful members.

Albert Giles of Cleveland, Western Reserve university student and Miss Lois Thompson, a comely young San Diego, Calif., girl in her 'teens, both sang praises of the Townsend plan.

They asserted that the Townsend plan would be removing old people from industry, would create 4,000,000 jobs for young people. Both asserted that the movement would sweep the youth of the land.

Asks For Loyalty

A ringing appeal by Miss Thompson for loyalty to Dr. Townsend was greeted by prolonged applause from the thousands of delegates, who rose to their feet clapping their hands and shouting.

"If you work for a man speak well of him," she said. "Stand by him. If you can't, then resign from the Townsend plan and go outside," she said.

A joyous greeting was given to Dr. Townsend's wife, a plump, motherly woman, who smiled and waved her hand as she was introduced as the "sweetheart of the Townsend movement.

While Dr. Townsend and his wife stood together, the convention listened with rapture to the singing of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Dr. Townsend bent over and kissed his wife repeatedly while the audience—almost equally divided between women and men—laughed and shouted.

Dwight Wilson of South Dakota Wesleyan university, another young speaker, praised the Townsend plan. He sailed into the Roosevelt administration.

"What has the last administration done for youth?" he asked. "They passed anti-kidnaping laws to protect the children of the rich. They passed a woefully inadequate security act to give you a mere dole."

hope to learn from witnesses of the incident.

It was apparent, however, that Scotland Yard may not be completely satisfied that George Andrew McMahon, the crippled journalist who levelled a loaded pistol at King Edward as the monarch was returning from a military ceremony in Hyde Park, attempted to carry out his deed single-handed.

It was possible also that the police wish to solve the mystery surrounding persistent reports yesterday that during the excitement when McMahon was seized by police, a missle of some sort was thrown at the King's horse.

the attitude that the seriousness of yesterday's incident has been exaggerated, he was described as extremely pleased with the world wide expressions of thankfulness for his escape.

He was particularly delighted with numerous cables from American well-wishers.

No Engagements Today

The king had no official outside engagements listed for today, and was expected to occupy himself at York House and Buckingham Palace with usual state business.

Though it was significant that there was not a single criticism of the police protection arrangements made for the king in voluminous descriptions of the affair in London's morning newspapers, police chiefs held a prolonged session until early this morning, fully reviewing all plans for safeguarding royal personages.

It was understood police executives agreed that yesterday's incident, in which George Andrew McMahon, a crippled Scottish journalist, pointed a loaded revolver at the king but was subdued before he could do any damage, was a blundering attempt.

They decided the attempt was made by a person probably deranged to direct attention toward supposed grievances.

Can Improve Guard

They also decided the present system of guarding the king can be considerably tightened and improved, especially along the line of stricter supervision of Edward's frequent incognito walks in the vicinity of Buckingham palace and York House. Moreover, they agreed to do something about his tendency to get ahead of his protective escort when afoot.

Sifting of a dozen or more claims showed that Anthony Gordon Dick, 36, a special policeman, and a French Polish salesman were the men responsible for knocking McMahon's gun into the roadway when the latter drew it as the king, at the head of a procession, approached Buckingham Palace after presenting new colors to three life guard regiments in Hyde Park.

"Some silly idiot had a revolver," and I knocked it out of his hand," said Dick when he was formally thanked by Scotland Yard officials for his part in preventing injury to the king.

Idea Seems Stupid

Mrs. Rose McMahon, wife of the would-be assassin, is an attractive, dark-eyed brunette. She is convinced her husband had no wish to harm King Edward, and told International News Service:

"The whole idea seems stupid to me. Even now I cannot believe it has happened."

McMahon, who was charged with possession of a weapon with intent to endanger life, will undergo medical examination during his eight-day jail remand.

At the conclusion of that period only crown officers will be empowered to say whether he will be recharged with attempted suicide or a threat against the life of the king. After his arrest McMahon steadfastly contended he had intended to commit suicide before the king as a protest.

But the charge against McMahon can be changed to high treason, an offense punishable by hanging, if it is proved he intended to kill Britain's 42 year old monarch, king for only five months.

King Edward is understood to be opposed to such drastic action. If results of investigation warrant, he is believed to prefer that McMahon be tried on the charge on which he was arraigned yesterday. If this were done, the charge of attempted assassination could be avoided.

SAYS RE-ELECTION OF ROOSEVELT IS QUITE DOUBTFUL

defection of Peek. He termed this development "the most important political event of the summer."

"If Peek, who has been in Kansas conferring with Governor Landon, decides to go all the way for Landon, he will walk off with the farm vote for the Republican ticket," declared Johnson.

"And if we have a real slump in farm prices before election day in November, it will mean that Roosevelt's last chance to win will have disappeared."

In Touch with Roosevelt

Johnson talked in a matter-of-fact way and without any apparent bias. He still is in constant touch with President Roosevelt. Hardly a week passes that they do not have a talk.

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, announced some time ago that Johnson would make speeches for Roosevelt during the campaign. Johnson refrained from commenting on this angle today, however. While Johnson gets along all right with the President, it is believed he is out of sympathy with the administration's "brain trusters".

Johnson expressed the opinion that the Townsend movement "will have to be reckoned with." Yet he regards the Townsend plan to pay $200 a month to each person over 60 years of age as impractical. It would entail a cost, he declared, of more than $24,000,000,000—this vast sum to be raised by a 2½ per cent tax on all turnovers.

"The Townsend plan would shatter the economic pattern of the United States," said Johnson. "The net income of the United States got up to $81,000,000,000 in 1929. It dropped to $36,000,000,000 in 1932. It recovered to $48,000,000,000 last year, and the estimate for 1936 is $55,000,000,000.

"This means they would have to take one-half of the income of the people of the United States and give it to eight per cent of the people—those over 60 years of age."

WOMAN IS WHEELED TO ELECTRIC CHAIR TO MEET HER DEATH

sent him to the chair. Turning his weak-chinned, tanned face toward the thirty witnesses in the execution chamber, he said in a calm, steady voice:

"Before God, gentlemen, I am innocent of this crime, and...he drew a heavy breath..."may God have mercy on the soul of Martin W. Littleton, of Nassau county."

Woman Dies First

Mrs. Creighton, who had lain inert on her prison cot for weeks, never knew what happened. She was in a dead faint when she was wheeled into the death chamber... a waxy, yellow-faced woman in a wheel chair. The closed lids of her eyes did not so much as flutter as two husky guards lifted her out of the wheel-chair and deposited her in the ugly squat electric chair, its leather and oaken arms waiting to clasp her in a lethal embrace.

The woman, the first of the two to die, was pronounced dead in three minutes, at 11:04 p. m., Applegate at 11:08. She was given two shocks. Applegate three.

No Farewells

No word of farewell was exchanged by the pair as the near-unconscious woman's screened by matrons, doctors and guards, was wheeled past the cell of her prison-partner, Applegate, had he wished, could have called out to her.

Mrs. Creighton was the first person in the history of Sing Sing to be wheeled to the chair. She seemed already dead as the guards clumsily lifted her into the electric chair. Her face was yellow, her skin transparent. Her eyes were closed. Her head was hanging on a loose, bent neck.

After some delay, the electrodes were fixed and Elliott deftly threw the switches. The guards stepped back hastily, scarcely clear of the black rubber square as the rheostat whined; as death claimed its victim.

Man Is Executed

A minute after the body was wheeled into the autopsy room, Applegate strode through the door of the execution chamber, chin held high, the little man's eyes were bulging somewhat, but he was game to the end.

Then he pronounced his dramatic curse upon the district attorney who prosecuted him. He said it just as defiantly as he had admitted, at the trial, that he did have an affair with 15-year old Ruth Creighton, his daughter's playmate, and just as earnestly as he had maintained his innocence of the poisoning of his wife.

His short speech completed, the little man marched to the chair with a firm tread. Again the rheostat whimpered. The face of the man in the chair curled in a queer agony. A puff of smoke purled up from the thong about his right leg. A tiny jet of flame spurted from the right leg. Three shocks, and it was over.

CALL THE ROLL

"What did you say your name was?" asked the enamored young man of the girl he had met at a dance.

"Was?" she repeated. "Price, Spencer Rollins, and Streeter."

been sentenced to die by hanging or electrocution.

But by her own statement her case has already shattered precedent for "Marble Mildred" has been quoted as saying a few days before she shot and killed her husband, Joseph, in his Loop insurance office:

"They just don't convict women for killing their husbands in Cook county."

Except for a slight paling of her roughed cheeks "Marble Mildred" was emotionless as the jury contradicted her statement last evening after deliberating but 36 minutes.

Not a flicker of an expression crossed her full, unattractive face as the bailiff read the verdict:

"We find the defendant, Mildred Mary Bolton, guilty of murder and fix her penalty at death."

Disdaining the assistance of a deputy who offered her his arm, she walked steadily from the crowded, noisy courtroom to her jail cell where she arrived just in time to eat a substantial supper with a seemingly lusty appetite.

Describing the move as "the usual precaution for persons condemned to die," Warden Frank Sain posted extra guards on her cell tier.

That far-away look he wears while you are talking means that he is thinking up what he will say when you get through.

While Dr. Townsend and his wife stood together, the convention listened with rapture to the singing of "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Dr. Townsend bent over and kissed his wife repeatedly while the audience—almost equally divided between women and men—laughed and shouted.

Dwight Wilson of South Dakota Wesleyan university, another young speaker, praised the Townsend plan. He sailed into the Roosevelt administration.

"What has the last administration done for youth?" he asked. "They passed anti-kidnaping laws to protect the children of the rich. They passed a woefully inadequate security act to give you a mere dole."

SCOTLAND YARD IS SUSPICIOUS MORE INVOLVED

hope to learn from witnesses of the incident.

It was apparent, however, that Scotland Yard may not be completely satisfied that George Andrew McMahon, the crippled journalist who levelled a loaded pistol at King Edward as the monarch was returning from a military ceremony in Hyde Park, attempted to carry out his deed single-handed.

It was possible also that the police wish to solve the mystery surrounding persistent reports yesterday that during the excitement when McMahon was seized by police, a missle of some sort was thrown at the King's horse.

All medicine has value. It makes you think you are being helpful while Nature effects a cure.

CONGRATULATIONS POURING IN UPON ENGLISH KING

the attitude that the seriousness of yesterday's incident has been exaggerated, he was described as extremely pleased with the world wide expressions of thankfulness for his escape.

He was particularly delighted with numerous cables from American well-wishers.

No Engagements Today

The king had no official outside engagements listed for today, and was expected to occupy himself at York House and Buckingham Palace with usual state business.

Though it was significant that there was not a single criticism of the police protection arrangements made for the king in voluminous descriptions of the affair in London's morning newspapers, police chiefs held a prolonged session until early this morning, fully reviewing all plans for safeguarding royal personages.

It was understood police executives agreed that yesterday's incident, in which George Andrew McMahon, a crippled Scottish journalist, pointed a loaded revolver at the king but was subdued before he could do any damage, was a blundering attempt.

They decided the attempt was made by a person probably deranged to direct attention toward supposed grievances.

Can Improve Guard

They also decided the present system of guarding the king can be considerably tightened and improved, especially along the line of stricter supervision of Edward's frequent incognito walks in the vicinity of Buckingham palace and York House. Mcreover, they agreed to do something about his tendency to get ahead of his protective escort when afoot.

Sifting of a dozen or more claims showed that Anthony Gordon Dick, 36, a special policeman, and a French Polish salesman were the men responsible for knocking McMahon's gun into the roadway when the latter drew it as the king, at the head of a procession, approached Buckingham Palace after presenting new colors to three life guard regiments in Hyde Park.

"Some silly idiot had a revolver," and I knocked it out of his hand," said Dick when he was formally thanked by Scotland Yard officials for his part in preventing injury to the king.

Idea Seems Stupid

Mrs. Rose McMahon, wife of the would-be assassin, is an attractive, dark-eyed brunette. She is convinced her husband had no wish to harm King Edward, and told International News Service:

"The whole idea seems stupid to me. Even now I cannot believe it has happened."

McMahon, who was charged with possession of a weapon with intent to endanger life, will undergo medical examination during his eight-day jail remand.

At the conclusion of that period only crown officers will be empowered to say whether he will be recharged with attempted suicide or a threat against the life of the king. After his arrest McMahon steadfastly contended he had intended to commit suicide before the king as a protest.

But the charge against McMahon can be changed to high treason, an offense punishable by hanging, if it is proved he intended to kill Britain's 42 year old monarch, king for only five months.

King Edward is understood to be opposed to such drastic action. If results of investigation warrant, he is believed to prefer that McMahon be tried on the charge on which he was arraigned yesterday. If this were done, the charge of attempted assassination could be avoided.

SAYS RE-ELECTION OF ROOSEVELT IS QUITE DOUBTFUL

defection of Peek. He termed this development "the most important political event of the summer."

"If Peek, who has been in Kansas conferring with Governor Landon, decides to go all the way for Landon, he will walk off with the farm vote for the Republican ticket," declared Johnson.

"And if we have a real slump in farm prices before election day in November, it will mean that Roosevelt's last chance to win will have disappeared."

In Touch with Roosevelt

Johnson talked in a matter-of-fact way and without any apparent bias. He still is in constant touch with President Roosevelt. Hardly a week passes that they do not have a talk.

James A. Farley, Democratic national chairman, announced some time ago that Johnson would make speeches for Roosevelt during the campaign. Johnson refrained from commenting on this angle today, however. While Johnson gets along all right with the President, it is believed he is out of sympathy with the administration's "brain trusters".

Johnson expressed the opinion that the Townsend movement "will have to be reckoned with." Yet he regards the Townsend plan to pay $200 a month to each person over 60 years of age as impractical. It would entail a cost, he declared, of more than $24,000,000,000—this vast sum to be raised by a 2½ per cent tax on all turnovers.

"The Townsend plan would shatter the economic pattern of the United States," said Johnson. "The net income of the United States got up to $81,000,000,000 in 1929. It dropped to $36,000,000,000 in 1932. It recovered to $48,000,000,000 last year, and the estimate for 1936 is $55,000,000,000.

"This means they would have to take one-half of the income of the people of the United States and give it to eight per cent of the people—those over 60 years of age."

ter constable. A bullet from Lutz' high-powered rifle, police said, killed Hull as the constable approached the Lutz home at Leaman Place, 10 miles east of here, to serve a warrant for the farmer's arrest.

Arriving later in answer to police calls, State Highway Patrolman William Hershner advanced on Lutz unarmed and argued for half an hour to pacify his intended prisoner. The second blaze of gunfire opened with the arrival of state troopers who wounded Lutz as he fired from behind a tree on his property.

Police said Lutz, who was reported to have suffered a recent nervous breakdown, had been drinking during the day and threatened to kill members of his family and a neighbor woman who tried to telephone for police.

WOMAN IS WHEELED TO ELECTRIC CHAIR TO MEET HER DEATH

sent him to the chair. Turning his weak-chinned, tanned face toward the thirty witnesses in the execution chamber, he said in a calm, steady voice:

"Before God, gentlemen, I am innocent of this crime, and...he drew a heavy breath..."may God have mercy on the soul of Martin W. Littleton, of Nassau county."

Woman Dies First

Mrs. Creighton, who had lain inert on her prison cot for weeks, never knew what happened. She was in a dead faint when she was wheeled into the death chamber... a waxy, yellow-faced woman in a wheel chair. The closed lids of her eyes did not so much as flutter as two husky guards lifted her out of the wheel-chair and deposited her in the ugly squat electric chair, its leather and oaken arms waiting to clasp her in a lethal embrace.

The woman, the first of the two to die, was pronounced dead in three minutes, at 11:04 p. m., Applegate at 11:08. She was given two shocks, Applegate three.

No Farewells

No word of farewell was exchanged by the pair as the near-unconscious woman's screened by matrons, doctors and guards, was wheeled past the cell of her prison-partner. Applegate, had he wished, could have called out to her.

Mrs. Creighton was the first person in the history of Sing Sing to be wheeled to the chair. She seemed already dead as the guards clumsily lifted her into the electric chair. Her face was yellow, her skin transparent. Her eyes were closed. Her head was hanging on a loose, bent neck.

After some delay, the electrodes were fixed and Elliott deftly threw the switches. The guards stepped back hastily, scarcely clear of the black rubber square as the rheostat whined; as death claimed its victim.

Man Is Executed

A minute after the body was wheeled into the autopsy room, Applegate strode through the door of the execution chamber, chin held high, the little man's eyes were bulging somewhat, but he was game to the end.

Then he pronounced his dramatic curse upon the district atttorney who prosecuted him. He said it just as defiantly as he had admitted, at the trial, that he did have an affair with 15-year old Ruth Creighton, his daughter's playmate, and just as earnestly as he had maintained his innocence of the poisoning of his wife.

His short speech completed, the little man marched to the chair with a firm tread. Again the rheostat whimpered. The face of the man in the chair curled in a queer agony. A puff of smoke purled up from the thong about his right leg. A tiny jet of flame spurted from the right leg. Three shocks, and it was over.

CALL THE ROLL

"What did you say your name was?" asked the enamored young man of the girl he had met at a dance.

"Was?" she repeated. "Price, Spencer Rollins, and Streeter."

JURY DECREES DEATH FOR HUSBAND SLAYER

been sentenced to die by hanging or electrocution.

But by her own statement her case has already shattered precedent for "Marble Mildred" has been quoted as saying a few days before she shot and killed her husband, Joseph, in his Loop insurance office:

"They just don't convict women for killing their husbands in Cook county."

Except for a slight paling of her roughed cheeks "Marble Mildred" was emotionless as the jury contradicted her statement last evening after deliberating but 36 minutes.

Not a flicker of an expression crossed her full, unattractive face as the bailiff read the verdict:

"We find the defendant, Mildred Mary Bolton, guilty of murder and fix her penalty at death."

Disdaining the assistance of a deputy who offered her his arm, she walked steadily from the crowded, noisy courtroom to her jail cell where she arrived just in time to eat a substantial supper with a seemingly lusty appetite.

Describing the move as "the usual precaution for persons condemned to die," Warden Frank Sain posted extra guards on her cell tier.

That far-away look he wears while you are talking means that he is thinking up what he will say when you get through.

VIRGINIA BRINTON TO WED R. GEORGE JULY 27

Last evening, a lovely party was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lloyd on Edison avenue, when their daughter, Mrs. Paul E. Hoskins of Brownsville, Pa., entertained informally at a shower honoring one of the seasons popular bride-elects, Miss Virginia Brinton, who announced the date of her wedding, On Monday, July 27, she will become the bride of Robert George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas George of Aliquippa.

Bridge occupied the early period, with Louise Fink and Mrs. Leslie Smith, the latter of Aliquippa, receiving the honor score prizes.

When luncheon time arrived, the assemblage was invited into the dining room, where they were seated about a table beautifully appointed with the nuptial motif predominating. A bouquet of garden flowers formed the attractive centerpiece, with yellow and white tones being carried out in all details. In a clever manner, news of the wedding date, was made known at this time, preceding the serving of a delicious menu. Afterwards, the guest of honor was showered with an array of attractive gifts, to use in her future home, bringing the delightful affair to a close.

The hostess had as aides throughout the evening, Jane Lloyd and Viola Borland.

RECENT BRIDE HONORED AT SHOWER THURSDAY

Among the social events of Thursday evening, was the miscellaneous shower given in the home of Mrs. Hilbert W. Reynolds on Graceland road, honoring Mrs. Howard Gresham Jr., of Oakmont, Pa., nee Helen Root, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Root of Wilmington avenue, who was recently married.

Approximately twenty were in attendance, and the time was spent leisurely in conversation and other ways of an informal nature, until time to give the bride her gifts. She was presented with the collection of prettily wrapped packages at an appropriate time, and upon opening each, found a number of beautiful articles to use in her home at Oakmont.

The serving of refreshments concluded the occasion, the hostess having as aides Jean Young and Dorothy Titus. Pastel shades prevailed in the menu and table appointments, featuring the nuptial idea.

PARSONAGE GARDEN LOVELY PARTY SCENE

There have been a half dozen or more lovely garden parties at North Hill residences in the past few weeks, but perhaps in none has the weatherman co-operated more generously than that of Thursday night at Whites', on Clenmore boulevard.

Dr. Norris A. White, First Methodist Episcopal church minister, and his sister, Miss Mary Alice White, were hospitable host and hostess of the occasion, and just as much credit goes to them for their work in making the party the success it was as goes to the weatherman.

Their lovely garden had been delightfully illuminated with Japanese lanterns and indirect lighting effects and presented a perfect setting. Sponsors of the affair were members of the Queen Esther auxiliary of the First M. E. church, and the guests numbered 125.

Miss Mildred Sargeant was the efficient general chairman and was ably assisted by the group leaders of the auxiliary. Bessie Coates Pitzer had charge of the entertainment, which featured music by an orchestra composed of Dr. W. A. Womer, Mrs. Margaret Womer Leonard of New Haven, Conn.; Mary Lou Womer, Harold Matthews and Don Cramer, with Dr. Womer in charge. Mary Lou and her father gave a pleasing flute duet, Kathryn M. Johnson gave a group of readings and Paul Lindsley gave a number of accordion selections, all to the great appreciation of everybody.

The guests were seated at small tables on the lawn and were served delicious summertime refreshments there.

MISS FULLERTON WILL BE MARRIED

MERCER, July 17.—An interesting announcement today is that of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Ellen Fullerton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sharp Fullerton of Mt. Jackson, and John Service, son of Mrs. Caroline N. Service of Sharon, which will be an event of August 29.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Mt. Jackson high school, attending Slippery Rock college. Later she was graduated from the Youngstown Comptometer school and has since been employed at the Westinghouse plant in Sharon.

Mr. Service is Mercer county recorder, having been elected last year. He was graduated from Sharon high school in 1926, attending Allegheny college for two years, and was graduated from Westminster college in 1930.

Mahoningtown Garden Club.

Mrs. J. L. Agan will receive members of the Mahoningtown Garden club on Tuesday, July 21, at her home on West Madison avenue. The time is 6:30 o'clock.

ZELMA NESBIT IS TENDERED SURPRISE

Miss Zelma Nesbit, who will become the bride of Dr. Norman Lamm of Sharon this season, graced the role of honor Thursday evening at a surprise shower given in the home of Mrs. George Deuel on Wallace avenue.

The event was attended by close friends of the bride-elect, and cards held sway as the main pastime. Mrs. Ralph Jordon and Miss Nesbit received the top score awards. The galloping prize fell to Mrs. Eben Reid, nee Helen McConnby of Charlotte, N. C., and formerly of New Castle.

Garden flowers were used in profusion in the decorations, and the luncheon was served at the small tables centered with small clusters of the same.

As the guests were about to depart, their attention was called with the presentation of a collection of prettily wrapped packages to Miss Nesbit, which disclosed a number of lovely gifts, which overwhelmed her.

MARTHA SHRINE NO. 14 PICNIC AT CASCADE

An overwhelming success was the picnic outing held by Martha Shrine No. 14 members Thursday evening, July 16, in the shaded grove of Cascade park, an annual affair.

A large number enjoyed the festivities and partook of the appeasing menu served at 6:30 o'clock at the long sheltered tables. Immediately following, excitement ensued with a novel drawing, the prize going to Mrs. William Wignall. A number of others were the recipients of awards for the bingo contests which held way during the balance of the time spent in the grove. The park amusements were further pleasures.

The success of the event was due to the work of the committee made up of Mrs. Carl F. Kirchner, Mrs. William Wignall, Mrs. Minnie Dufford and Ella Bailey.

CATHEDRAL CHAPTER OF O. E. S. ENJOYS PICNIC

Perfect weather, and an enthusiastic gathering of Cathedral Chapter, No. 440, Order of Eastern Star members, was a grand beginning for the annual picnic outing held for chapter associates, in the grove at Cascade Park Thursday evening, which was attended by a hundred or more. Mrs. Emma Leslie is worthy matron of 440.

The tables were decorated with bouquets of flowers donated by Mrs. Isabelle Ronk, where the menu was served. Later, games were in progress with Bobby Gee and Miller Henley receiving the contest awards.

This marked their annual picnic outing, and the committee in charge who aided in making it a complete success, includes Olive Fern Sanford, Mrs. Isabelle Ronk, Mrs. Edward Hartland, Mrs. Ruth Gee, Mrs. P. Thayer and Mrs. Clara Vogan.

D. D. Club Meeting

Mrs. Thomas Gartland was a charming hostess to members of the D. D. club as they gathered at a downtown tearoom for their regular meeting Thursday.

Card contests filled the evening hours with pretty favors going to Ruth Kurtz and Sue Roth at the end of play. Mrs. Merel Brooks was delightfully surprised when honored with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Later a delicious repast was served at a long table decorated with summer flowers. Miss Mary Gardner was a special guest.

The next meeting will take place on July 30, the place to be announced later.

MISS GERTRUDE POTTER HONORS MISS WALLACE

One of the loveliest porch parties of the summer season was that which was held at the home of Miss Gertrude Potter, 913 Adams street, Thursday evening, the occasion being in the form of a bridge-shower honoring Miss Susan Wallace, who will wed Donald Rigby.

At the tables placed about the cleverly lighted veranda, four tables of players competed for honors, whiling away the early period. At conclusion of play, it was discovered Elma Badger, Mrs. John Rodgers and Mrs. J. E. Barrett were the fortunate winners of the awards. Lunch followed, the small tables being used with individual hand made roses marking the places.

Among the assembly were two out of town guests, Mrs. J. E. Barrett of Phoenix, Ariz., an aunt of Miss Wallace, and Mrs. John Rodgers of Gary, Ind., formerly of this city, while the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Laura Wallace, was a special participant.

With the game ended, the group filed into the house where they gazed upon a beautiful setting, the large table being centered with a huge pink rose, to match the lunch favors, claiming their attention.

Concealed inside the giant rose were "Good Wishes for the Bride" written on individual cards attached to dainty blue streamers that extended in every direction over the table. The other end of each ribbon was tied to a gift and placed in a circle on the table for the bride. When she had completed the act of detaching each article, she had an array of pretty gifts for her new home.

Miss Potter was assisted with festivities by Mrs. Kate Wilson.

SECOND U. P. GROUP HAS PICNIC OUTING

With ideal picnic weather, picnics and outdoor parties seem to be all the vogue, and on Thursday evening the Gleaners society of the Second U. P. church motored to Cascade Park, where they held a supper in the shaded grove of the playground.

At tables under shelter places were marked for the guests, where a deliciously prepared menu was served at 6:30 o'clock. Garden flowers were used as centerpieces, and following the time was spent informally about the grounds of the beautiful recreation center.

The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Frank Weir, Mrs. James Bradford, Mrs. S. R. Wilkison and Mrs. C. H. Martin.

This marked the last assembly of the organization until the fall season, when regular sessions will again be resumed.

The remaining hours of the afternoon were given over to a program made up of a group of interesting talks given by Mrs. T. D. Allen, Mrs. Lucy Fullwood and Mrs. T. Bates.

After a period of informal pastimes, the hotsess invited her guests into the dining room where they partook of a dainty lunch served at a table centered with a large pink iced cake. Tones were carried out in a theme of pink and white.

Business affairs will be disregarded until October, the remaining sessions of the summer taking the form of social events and outings. One of the first on schedule took place last week in the form of a breakfast at Cascade park.

Their next meeting on July 30 will be with Mrs. Edward L. McKissick of 202 South Crawford avenue.

Sicilian Club Guests

Sicilian club members were charmingly entertained by Miss Pat Tomasello in the home of Mrs. Paul LaScola of 124 North Mulberry street.

Balloons of every hue, were tossed into the air, and other novelites were distributed that added further to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mrs. Eben Reid, nee Helen McConahy, who is visiting here, was a special guest of the Association.

Mrs. Blackwood was a charming hostess and had made every arrangement for the comfort and pleasure of her guests. She served, at the close of the dinner, a very tasty dessert, ice tea and coffee.

Separate business meetings were conducted by the two societies, and later they assembled together and heard an address by Miss Lillian McCracken, a returned missionary from Manchuria. Miss McCracken gave a descriptive and enlightening report of her work and the task of missionaries in the Orient.

C. D. Of A. Meeting

Later, Mrs. Evelyn Woods, retiring grand regent, presented the Rev. Fr. A. P. VIRGINIA BRINTON TO WED R. GEORGE JULY 27

Last evening, a lovely party was given in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lloyd on Edison avenue, when their daughter, Mrs. Paul E. Hoskins of Brownsville, Pa., entertained informally at a shower honoring one of the seasons popular bride-elects, Miss Virginia Brinton, who announced the date of her wedding. On Monday, July 27, she will become the bride of Robert George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas George of Aliquippa.

Bridge occupied the early period, with Louise Fink and Mrs. Leslie Smith, the latter of Aliquippa, receiving the honor score prizes.

When luncheon time arrived, the assemblage was invited into the dining room, where they were seated about a table beautifully appointed with the nuptial motif predominating. A bouquet of garden flowers formed the attractive centerpiece, with yellow and white tones being carried out in all details. In a clever manner, news of the wedding date, was made known at this time, preceding the serving of a delicious menu. Afterwards, the guest of honor was showered with an array of attractive gifts, to use in her future home, bringing the delightful affair to a close.

The hostess had as aides throughout the evening, Jane Lloyd and Viola Borland.

RECENT BRIDE HONORED AT SHOWER THURSDAY

Among the social events of Thursday evening, was the miscellaneous shower given in the home of Mrs. Hilbert W. Reynolds on Graceland road, honoring Mrs. Howard Gresham Jr., of Oakmont, Pa., nee Helen Root, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Root of Wilmington avenue, who was recently married.

Approximately twenty were in attendance, and the time was spent leisurely in conversation and other ways of an informal nature, until time to give the bride her gifts. She was presented with the collection of prettily wrapped packages at an appropriate time, and upon opening each, found a number of beautiful articles to use in her home at Oakmont.

The serving of refreshments concluded the occasion, the hostess having as aides Jean Young and Dorothy Titus. Pastel shades prevailed in the menu and table appointments, featuring the nuptial idea.

PARSONAGE GARDEN LOVELY PARTY SCENE

There have been a half dozen or more lovely garden parties at North Hill residences in the past few weeks, but perhaps in none has the weatherman co-operated more generously than that of Thursday night at Whites', on Clenmore boulevard.

Dr. Norris A. White, First Methodist Episcopal church minister, and his sister, Miss Mary Alice White, were hospitable host and hostess of the occasion, and just as much credit goes to them for their work in making the party the success it was as goes to the weatherman.

Their lovely garden had been delightfully illuminated with Japanese lanterns and indirect lighting effects and presented a perfect setting. Sponsors of the affair were members of the Queen Esther auxiliary of the First M. E. church, and the guests numbered 125.

Miss Mildred Sargeant was the efficient general chairman and was ably assisted by the group leaders of the auxiliary. Bessie Coates Pitzer had charge of the entertainment, which featured music by an orchestra composed of Dr. W. A. Womer, Mrs. Margaret Womer Leonard of New Haven, Conn.; Mary Lou Womer, Harold Matthews and Don Cramer, with Dr. Womer in charge. Mary Lou and her father gave a pleasing flute duet, Kathryn M. Johnson gave a group of readings and Paul Lindsley gave a number of accordion selections, all to the great appreciation of everybody.

The guests were seated at small tables on the lawn and were served delicious summertime refreshments there.

MISS FULLERTON WILL BE MARRIED

MERCER, July 17.—An interesting announcement today is that of the forthcoming marriage of Miss Ellen Fullerton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Sharp Fullerton of Mt. Jackson, and John Service, son of Mrs. Caroline N. Service of Sharon, which will be an event of August 29.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Mt. Jackson high school, attending Slippery Rock college. Later she was graduated from the Youngstown Comptometer school and has since been employed at the Westinghouse plant in Sharon.

Mr. Service is Mercer county recorder, having been elected last year. He was graduated from Sharon high school in 1926, attending Allegheny college for two years, and was graduated from Westminster college in 1930.

Mahoningtown Garden Club.

Mrs. J. L. Agan will receive members of the Mahoningtown Garden club on Tuesday, July 21, at her home on West Madison avenue. The time is 6:30 o'clock.

ZELMA NESBIT IS TENDERED SURPRISE

Miss Zelma Nesbit, who will become the bride of Dr. Norman Lamm of Sharon this season, graced the role of honor Thursday evening at a surprise shower given in the home of Mrs. George Deuel on Wallace avenue.

The event was attended by close friends of the bride-elect, and cards held sway as the main pastime. Mrs. Ralph Jordon and Miss Nesbit received the top score awards. The galloping prize fell to Mrs. Eben Reid, nee Helen McConahy of Charlotte, N. C., and formerly of New Castle.

Garden flowers were used in profusion in the decorations, and the luncheon was served at the small tables centered with small clusters of the same.

As the guests were about to depart, their attention was called with the presentation of a collection of prettily wrapped packages to Miss Nesbit, which disclosed a number of lovely gifts, which overwhelmed her.

MARTHA SHRINE NO. 14 PICNIC AT CASCADE

An overwhelming success was the picnic outing held by Martha Shrine No. 14 members Thursday evening, July 16, in the shaded grove of Cascade park, an annual affair.

A large number enjoyed the festivities and partook of the appeasing menu served at 6:30 o'clock at the long sheltered tables. Immediately following, excitement ensued with a novel drawing, the prize going to Mrs. William Wignall. A number of others were the recipients of awards for the bingo contests which held way during the balance of the time spent in the grove. The park amusements were further pleasures.

The success of the event was due to the work of the committee made up of Mrs. Carl F. Kirchner, Mrs. William Wignall, Mrs. Minnie Dufford and Ella Bailey.

CATHEDRAL CHAPTER OF O. E. S. ENJOYS PICNIC

Perfect weather, and an enthusiastic gathering of Cathedral Chapter, No. 440, Order of Eastern Star members, was a grand beginning for the annual picnic outing held for chapter associates, in the grove at Cascade Park Thursday evening, which was attended by a hundred or more. Mrs. Emma Leslie is worthy matron of 440.

The tables were decorated with bouquets of flowers donated by Mrs. Isabelle Ronk, where the menu was served. Later, games were in progress with Bobby Gee and Miller Henley receiving the contest awards.

This marked their annual picnic outing, and the committee in charge who aided in making it a complete success, includes Olive Fern Sanford, Mrs. Isabelle Ronk, Mrs. Edward Hartland, Mrs. Ruth Gee, Mrs. P. Thayer and Mrs. Clara Vogan.

D. D. Club Meeting

Mrs. Thomas Gartland was a charming hostess to members of the D. D. club as they gathered at a downtown tearoom for their regular meeting Thursday.

Card contests filled the evening hours with pretty favors going to Ruth Kurtz and Sue Roth at the end of play. Mrs. Merel Brooks was delightfully surprised when honored with a shower of miscellaneous gifts.

Later a delicious repast was served at a long table decorated with summer flowers. Miss Mary Gardner was a special guest.

The next meeting will take place on July 30, the place to be announced later.

MISS GERTRUDE POTTER HONORS MISS WALLACE

One of the loveliest porch parties of the summer season was that which was held at the home of Miss Gertrude Potter, 913 Adams street, Thursday evening, the occasion being in the form of a bridge-shower honoring Miss Susan Wallace, who will wed Donald Rigby.

At the tables placed about the cleverly lighted veranda, four tables of players competed for honors, whiling away the early period. At conclusion of play, it was discovered Elma Badger, Mrs. John Rodgers and Mrs. J. E. Barrett were the fortunate winners of the awards. Lunch followed, the small tables being used with individual hand made roses marking the places.

Among the assembly were two out of town guests, Mrs. J. E. Barrett of Phoenix, Ariz., an aunt of Miss Wallace, and Mrs. John Rodgers of Gary, Ind., formerly of this city, while the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Laura Wallace, was a special participant.

With the game ended, the group filed into the house where they gazed upon a beautiful setting, the large table being centered with a huge pink rose, to match the lunch favors, claiming their attention.

Concealed inside the giant rose were "Good Wishes for the Bride" written on individual cards attached to dainty blue streamers that extended in every direction over the table. The other end of each ribbon was tied to a gift and placed in a circle on the table for the bride. When she had completed the act of detaching each article, she had an array of pretty gifts for her new home.

Miss Potter was assisted with festivities by Mrs. Kate Wilson.

SECOND U. P. GROUP HAS PICNIC OUTING

With ideal picnic weather, picnics and outdoor parties seem to be all the vogue, and on Thursday evening the Gleaners society of the Second U. P. church motored to Cascade Park, where they held a supper in the shaded grove of the playground.

At tables under shelter places were marked for the guests, where a deliciously prepared menu was served at 6:30 o'clock. Garden flowers were used as centerpieces, and following the time was spent informally about the grounds of the beautiful recreation center.

The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. Frank Weir, Mrs. James Bradford, Mrs. S. R. Wilkison and Mrs. C. H. Martin.

This marked the last assembly of the organization until the fall season, when regular sessions will again be resumed.

ADULT BIBLE CLASS HAS ANNUAL PICNIC

On Thursday, members of the Adult Bible class, of the Primitive Methodist church, gathered at Cascade Park, for their annual picnic dinner.

Places were laid for fifteen at an attractively decorated table. Rev. and Mrs. J. Albert Tinker and Mrs. T. Bates, of Pittsburgh, were special guests of the occasion.

The remaining hours of the afternoon were given over to a program made up of a group of interesting talks given by Mrs. T. D. Allen, Mrs. Lucy Fullwood and Mrs. T. Bates.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner included, Mrs. Charlotte Muse and Mrs. M. A. Hoyland.

Cheerio Club Entertains.

Members of the Cheerio club were entertained Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Edward Kelley on East Washington street. Activities opened with a drawing. Mrs. William Burdette receiving the award. A special guest gift was presented to Mrs. Converse Branscome, a visitor.

After a period of informal pastimes, the hotsess invited her guests into the dining room where they partook of a dainty lunch served at a table centered with a large pink iced cake. Tones were carried out in a theme of pink and white.

Business affairs will be disregarded until October, the remaining sessions of the summer taking the form of social events and outings. One of the first on schedule took place last week in the form of a breakfast at Cascade park.

Their next meeting on July 30 will be with Mrs. Edward L. McKisick of 202 South Crawford avenue.

Sicilian Club Guests

Sicilian club members were charmingly entertained by Miss Pat Tomasello in the home of Mrs. Paul LaScola of 124 North Mulberry street.

Dancing and social chat formed the pastimes. During a short business meeting plans were made for a chicken dinner Sunday, Aug. 9, at Stoughton Beach. The committee appointed: Miss Marie Tomasello, Mrs. Francis DeSanctis and Miss Carie Sanfilippo. At an appointed time the hostess, assisted by her sister, Marie, served appetizing refreshments. The event was most enjoyable.

In two weeks Mrs. Joseph Anzelotti of Emerson avenue will receive the club.

LADIES ASSOCIATION ENJOYS LAWN FETE

The Ladies Association of the First United Presbyterian church, entertained at a delightful lawn fete at their church, corner of Albert street and Clenmore Boulevard, which attracted guests numbering forty and upwards. Families and guests entered into the informal program, which was in progress at an early hour.

Balloons of every hue, were tossed into the air, and other novelites were distributed that added further to the enjoyment of the occasion. Mrs. Eben Reid, nee Helen McConahy, who is visiting here, was a special guest of the Association.

Garden flowers added to the decorative beauty of the setting, and refreshments were served by a committee, including Mrs. Celia Wolford, chairman, Mrs. Louis Klee, Mrs. Walter Patterson and Mrs. George Moore.

At the close of play honor score awards were given to Mrs. J. F. Perelman and Miss Jean Patterson for the women who competed, and the men winning trophies were Edward A. Long and S. E. Patterson. The serving of an appetizing lunch followed.

Saturday evening in the club ballroom members will gather for another of their dance parties, one of the summer series planned for their entertainment. C. L. Shira, chairman, and his committee have engaged one of the leading bands to provide a pleasing program of music, starting promptly at 9:30 o'clock.

Blackwood, near McConnell's Mills, Thursday, the Women's Missionary Society of the Reformed Presbyterian church of New Castle and the Women's Missionary Society of the Reformed Presbyterian church of Rose Point, had a delicious tureen dinner at noon and a very interesting afternoon's program.

Mrs. Blackwood was a charming hostess and had made every arrangement for the comfort and pleasure of her guests. She served, at the close of the dinner, a very tasty dessert, ice tea and coffee.

Separate business meetings were conducted by the two societies, and later they assembled together and heard an address by Miss Lillian McCracken, a returned missionary from Manchuria. Miss McCracken gave a descriptive and enlightening report of her work and the task of missionaries in the Orient.

C. D. Of A. Meeting

OFF TO OLYMPICS

TO THE small army of young men and women who have just set sail in quest of Olympic honors for the United States, the American sports public will wish God-speed and the best of good fortune.

They compose the largest Olympic team ever to go abroad under the Stars and Stripes, and they represent the pick of the nation in twenty-one fields of sport, from baseball and canoeing to wrestling and track events.

There have been many trials and anxieties to beset these youths, aside from the rigorous competitive examinations they had to undergo before winning the right to an Olympiad's colors. Some months ago there was considerable doubt whether any American team would be represented at Berlin. Almost up to the minute of sailing, there was the threat of insufficient funds to finance the team, a threat that was removed only by dint of last-minute scraping and skimping.

But at last they are off on their athletic argosy—and the champions of the rest of the world's nations are waiting for them. The Americans are in for no easy time of it in Berlin. With such meteoric runners as Owens and Cunningham, Venzke and Romani, the track teams should give a good account of themselves, but running is just one small part of the Olympic contests.

That they will reflect credit upon themselves and honor upon their country, win or lose, is not to be doubted. They and their youthful competitors from many lands, in observing the Olympic tradition of true sportsmanship, should instill a breath of fresh air in the overheated atmosphere of a still warlike Europe.

JOHN BULL AND UNCLE SAM

Americans get an especially warm welcome in South Africa, says a returned traveler. "Towns like Johannesburg and Cape Town are just like American cities. You see American automobiles, elevators, typewriters and refrigerators everywhere. A Capetown merchant told me nearly all of his women's wearing apparel came from this country."

Others tell the same story. The British South Africans really seem to buy more American than English goods. There is the same tendency, though not quite so strong, in Australia, New Zealand and other British dominions and colonies. Our British neighbor, Canada, as our people well know, is our best foreign customer.

All in all, the British people today, the world over, are pretty good friends of ours, even though English merchants and manufacturers sometimes resent this preference for our goods in outlying parts of the empire. And American sentiment toward them is kindlier than it used to be. The Revolutionary War is a long way off now, especially since the World War and recent developments on the European continent. These two leading powers really have a good deal in common.

WHO SAYS TALK IS CHEAP?

When congress adjourned there was an end to debate in senate and house. The Congressional Record, which prints speeches and proceedings in full, automatically should have ceased publication, yet it is still engaged in turning out supplements. It is now operating as an adjunct to a political machine.

The Congressional Record, legitimately conducted, is a necessity, since there must be kept in official form the daily doings and sayings of congress. But long ago it departed from its legitimate purpose. Abuses have gradually crept in until they have become a distinct burden upon the taxpayer. Senators and representatives have only to ask "leave to print" speeches and addresses which they never made, but which might be useful to them in their political campaigns, and automatic consent is given. At best they have the excuse that they are members of congress and that they are entitled to spread upon the pages of the official record remarks which, for lack of time, say, they can not deliver in person.

But congress has gone far beyond this custom. Paul Mallon, writing in The Inquirer, calls attention to the fact that since adjournment eighty-nine published pages have been issued and that more are to come. Of the eighty-nine, fifty-five are devoted to reproduction of the addresses made in the Democratic national convention at Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia convention bears no relation whatever to the proceedings of congress. However, its journal has been made to shoulder the expense of putting columns upon columns of Philadelphia oratory or pseudo-oratory in type. The cost of composition, of printing and of the white paper used in its regular editions mounts to huge sums of money, and all this political stuff is added to its bulk.

Once included in the Congressional Record, political propaganda becomes available to party managers or to individual members of the nation's legislative body. It can be segregated and these segregated parts obtained at the mere cost of printing. Then what happens? They are mailed in any desired quantities—tons at a time—free of charge. The country will be flooded with the turgid addresses of Chairman Joe Robinson and others, and the bill for mail transportation will be footed by the government. Who says talk is cheap?

It is a neat and economical way of making a campaign—economical to the political managers, but costly to citizens who pay taxes. This evil has reached mammoth proportions. It is rank dishonesty.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

This is the second of three articles by Charles P. Stewart, on the U. S. Government's efforts to combat the drouth.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Several government bureaus and agencies have been mobilized to meet the national drouth emergency.

Probably the most active is the WPA.

President Roosevelt has authorized 75,000 jobs to be handled by this setup.

Roughly, the work will consist of water conservation, with an eye to the future rather than the immediate present. The menace of this new desert, wind borne and man defying, lays heavy on the consciousness of officials. How can its spread be checked; how can the burned out ashes of the pit be reclaimed? How can the five million farmers be assured food and shelter?

There is the pattern.
What is the answer?
Honestly, it has not been found.

PRESENT EFFORTS

Here is what is being done:

At a conservative estimate each of those farmers may be assumed as having three dependents each, 20 million persons, who must be fed. The Works Progress Administration is putting them to work at $15 a week. A family of four can live on that.

Those men are building dams, some in dry watercourses and others where a trickle still works its weary way to the sea, to prevent a recurrence of the course of 1936. By this means it is also hoped to raise the subterranean water level to its former proximity to the surface. Wells are being driven in an almost frantic hunt for water; for life itself. Deep rooting grasses, which give to rather than take away from the soil, will be planted where climatic conditions permit.

The whole fight is being waged against imponderable forces, forces wholly beyond the control of man.

BEYOND MAN'S POWER

For instance, the weather bureau explained the prolonged drouth by pointing to what the scientists describe as a mass of ocean cooled air hovering above the Pacific somewhere between Alaska and Hawaii.

There it had been hanging between sea and sky, and there it was to stay until Nature herself decided to start it inland to bring rain, relief and salvation to almost all of the United States lying to the west of the Appalachian mountains. It could not be towed ashore by dirigibles or blown from its moorings by bombing airplanes.

It was almost as mysterious and malignantly perverse as the subterranean flow of the water toward the Gulf of Mexico, which now is being studied more closely than ever before.

WATER LEVEL PROBLEM

Years ago this water level problem was studied casually in the citrus fruit section of California.

In the early days of the industry water could be found in plenty 20 or 30 feet below the surface, and it was used; its moisture was converted into orange juice and shipped out of the country. The level began sinking, sank some more, and continued to sink, until now finding water beneath the surface there is a major undertaking. Impounding the waters of mountain streams and rivers solved the problem for California.

But there is no such salvation for Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wyoming now. There is no water there, available for quenching the flames of the burning granary; there is no water to be had to give life to seeds whose roots would hold the soil firm against the plucking fingers of the wind.

A vivid picture of the spread of the drouth and the rapidity with which it has moved is furnished by department of agriculture maps.

The one as of June 1 showed extreme drouth in the northwest, in the upper Missouri country. Also, some sections of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia. Conditions elsewhere were sectionally distressing, but not as now, appalling.

Now—two-thirds of the United States is involved!

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

ONE WAY

"Alice, I'm going to give a lot of these old clothes to the charity organization," Brown announced to his wife. "Here are socks and shirts that ought to do some poor fellow a lot of good."

Alice came over to look into the matter.

"I guess it will be all right," she agreed. "But, my! I can't send that stuff out like that. Why, there are a lot of buttons off the shirts and the socks need darning."

In a few days Alice had the garments fixed up and announced to hubby he could send the package off to the charity organization now.

"But, Alice," he protested when he looked the stuff over, "you have it in such good shape that I am going to wear them awhile longer myself."

As Alice went out of the room, hubby smiled contentedly.

"It worked! It worked!" he observed under his breath.

Good Taste

By FRANCINE MARKEL

By FRANCINE MARKEL

DEAR MISS MARKEL: Almost everywhere I go I see people cut meat with their knives in the right hand, lay the knife down on the plate, switch the fork to the right hand, pick up the piece of meat, switch the fork back to the left hand, cut another portion, switch it back to the right hand to again convey the meat to the mouth, and so on ad infinitum. Could this awkward manner of eating possibly be correct? Wouldn't it be much simpler to convey each piece to the mouth with the fork in the left hand?—Wondering.

Answer—This does not seem like motion, but many well-bred persons do it.

When eating knife foods the knife should be held in the right hand, the fork in the left. Each portion cut off should be conveyed to the mouth with the fork, prongs down, held in the left hand, only one mouthful being cut off at a time, of course. It is not necessary to switch the fork from the left to the right hand each time a portion of meat is lifted to the mouth.

When no knife is used the fork should be held in the right hand, prongs up, to convey food to the mouth.

All Of Us

WHAT ARE YOU AFRAID OF?

You can make a fairly accurate check on yourself by asking yourself what you are afraid of? and why? and what you can do about about it?

Nearly everybody is afraid of something.

Some men are afraid of dogs. . . . Perhaps they were frightened, or bit, by dogs and can give you several good reasons for their dislike. . . . The fact is, deep underneath they fear them.

Cats frighten some men and women. . . . They don't yowl when a cat comes into a room, but they can't bear to touch them. The fear may go far back into the past, beyond even that time in Egypt when cats were worshiped—partly because men feared them. . . . Not much can be done about that. After all, there's no law compelling anybody to love cats.

Some women fear mice and rats or any insect, or men kill even harmless snakes because they are really afraid of them.

Some grownup men and women can't endure even a little blood flowing from a cut. They turn pale and faint.

Or they get dizzy at even low heights, or shudder in the dark, or can't stand a closed room, or are afraid when they are alone. Or get desperate when in crowds, or shrink away from any strong emotion.

Almost every man or woman or child has some small, apparently isolated fears. . . . And these are not terribly important unless they are "babied" and encouraged.

But there are others, tragic people, who are afraid of being alive. They were born, physically, like everybody else, but they have never been fully and joyfully born into the lively, fascinating, challenging experience of living on this exciting earth. . . . They are afraid of the most important experience we can have, and they MUST do something about that.

What are YOU afraid of?

LIFE'S HAZARDS

And to settle down and bask

Knowing need from day to day,
With a goal adown the way
Still unwon.

I don't want to sit about.
Free from every care and doubt.
With my problems all worked out—
That's no fun!
When I wake I want to say:
I've a job ahead today
And I'm hopeful that I may
Get it done.
I don't want to be secure.
I don't want my winnings sure.
I want hardships to endure
Now and then.
I have blundered and I've strayed.
I've been troubled and dismayed.

NAVAL NOTES

By M. L. NIXON
Naval Recruiter, Second Floor Federal Building

The signal flags used by naval vessels are the result of developments over several hundreds of years. The shapes, designs and colors are restricted to those easily distinguishable. At first the national flags of the ships were used, and later the flags of foreign countries were used for signal purposes. This use of the flags of foreign nations particularly in emergency codes adopted at sea, persisted long after official code flags had been adopted by the British navy, and was in vogue in the British navy and the American navy during the American revolution. At first the "codes" were very simple and contained only a few easily remembered signals. The red flag, as a signal of battle, was not of English origin, but was one of the unwritten customs of the sea. The present day custom in time of battle is to hoist a small set of the national colors to the highest point on the ship. This is usually the mainmast.

To men of the sea the Black Horse flag is the symbol of succor on the high seas. The origin of the term dates back to the time when the marine underwriters themselves had to carry on what little salvage there was in American waters. In foggy weather they stationed men and horses on the Atlantic Capes, with orders to the men to get immediate word to them the moment they sighted a ship in distress off shore—"Immediately even if you have to kill a horse."

OFF TO OLYMPICS

TO THE small army of young men and women who have just set sail in quest of Olympic honors for the United States, the American sports public will wish God-speed and the best of good fortune.

They compose the largest Olympic team ever to go abroad under the Stars and Stripes, and they represent the pick of the nation in twenty-one fields of sport, from baseball and canoeing to wrestling and track events.

There have been many trials and anxieties to beset these youths, aside from the rigorous competitive examinations they had to undergo before winning the right to an Olympiad's colors. Some months ago there was considerable doubt whether any American team would be represented at Berlin. Almost up to the minute of sailing, there was the threat of insufficient funds to finance the team, a threat that was removed only by dint of last-minute scraping and skimping.

But at last they are off on their athletic argosy—and the champions of the rest of the world's nations are waiting for them. The Americans are in for no easy time of it in Berlin. With such meteoric runners as Owens and Cunningham, Venzke and Romani, the track teams should give a good account of themselves, but running is just one small part of the Olympic contests.

That they will reflect credit upon themselves and honor upon their country, win or lose, is not to be doubted. They and their youthful competitors from many lands, in observing the Olympic tradition of true sportsmanship, should instill a breath of fresh air in the overheated atmosphere of a still warlike Europe.

JOHN BULL AND UNCLE SAM

Americans get an especially warm welcome in South Africa, says a returned traveler. "Towns like Johannesburg and Cape Town are just like American cities. You see American automobiles, elevators, typewriters and refrigerators everywhere. A Capetown merchant told me nearly all of his women's wearing apparel came from this country."

Others tell the same story. The British South Africans really seem to buy more American than English goods. There is the same tendency, though not quite so strong, in Australia, New Zealand and other British dominions and colonies. Our British neighbor, Canada, as our people well know, is our best foreign customer.

All in all, the British people today, the world over, are pretty good friends of ours, even though English merchants and manufacturers sometimes resent this preference for our goods in outlying parts of the empire. And American sentiment toward them is kindlier than it used to be. The Revolutionary War is a long way off now, especially since the World War and recent developments on the European continent. These two leading powers really have a good deal in common.

WHO SAYS TALK IS CHEAP?

When congress adjourned there was an end to debate in senate and house. The Congressional Record, which prints speeches and proceedings in full, automatically should have ceased publication, yet it is still engaged in turning out supplements. It is now operating as an adjunct to a political machine.

The Congressional Record, legitimately conducted, is a necessity, since there must be kept in official form the daily doings and sayings of congress. But long ago it departed from its legitimate purpose. Abuses have gradually crept in until they have become a distinct burden upon the taxpayer. Senators and representatives have only to ask "leave to print" speeches and addresses which they never made, but which might be useful to them in their political campaigns, and automatic consent is given. At best they have the excuse that they are members of congress and that they are entitled to spread upon the pages of the official record remarks which, for lack of time, say, they can not deliver in person.

But congress has gone far beyond this custom. Paul Mallon, writing in The Inquirer, calls attention to the fact that since adjournment eighty-nine published pages have been issued and that more are to come. Of the eighty-nine, fifty-five are devoted to reproduction of the addresses made in the Democratic national convention at Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia convention bears no relation whatever to the proceedings of congress. However, its journal has been made to shoulder the expense of putting columns upon columns of Philadelphia oratory or pseudo-oratory in type. The cost of composition, of printing and of the white paper used in its regular editions mounts to huge sums of money, and all this political stuff is added to its bulk.

Once included in the Congressional Record, political propaganda becomes available to party managers or to individual members of the nation's legislative body. It can be segregated and these segregated parts obtained at the mere cost of printing. Then what happens? They are mailed in any desired quantities—tons at a time—free of charge. The country will be flooded with the turgid addresses of Chairman Joe Robinson and others, and the bill for mail transportation will be footed by the government. Who says talk is cheap?

There it had been hanging between sea and sky, and there it was to stay until Nature herself decided to start it inland to bring rain, relief and salvation to almost all of the United States lying to the west of the Appalachian mountains. It could not be towed ashore by dirigibles or blown from its moorings by bombing airplanes.

It was almost as mysterious and malignantly perverse as the subterranean flow of the water toward the Gulf of Mexico, which now is being studied more closely than ever before.

WATER LEVEL PROBLEM

Years ago this water level problem was studied casually in the citrus fruit section of California.

In the early days of the industry water could be found in plenty 20 or 30 feet below the surface, and it was used; its moisture was converted into orange juice and shipped out of the country. The level began sinking, sank some more, and continued to sink, until now finding water beneath the surface there is a major undertaking. Impounding the waters of mountain streams and rivers solved the problem for California.

But there is no such salvation for Montana, North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Wyoming now. There is no water there, available for quenching the flames of the burning granary; there is no water to be had to give life to seeds whose roots would hold the soil firm against the plucking fingers of the wind.

A vivid picture of the spread of the drouth and the rapidity with which it has moved is furnished by department of agriculture maps.

The one as of June 1 showed extreme drouth in the northwest, in the upper Missouri country. Also, some sections of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee and Virginia. Conditions elsewhere were sectionally distressing, but not as now, appaling.

Now—two-thirds of the United States is involved!

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

ONE WAY

"Alice, I'm going to give a lot of these old clothes to the charity organization," Brown announced to his wife. "Here are socks and shirts that ought to do some poor fellow a lot of good."

Alice came over to look into the matter.

"I guess it will be all right," she agreed. "But, my! I can't send that stuff out like that. Why, there are a lot of buttons off the shirts and the socks need darning."

In a few days Alice had the garments fixed up and announced to hubby he could send the package off to the charity organization now.

"But, Alice," he protested when he looked the stuff over, "you have it in such good shape that I am going to wear them awhile longer myself."

As Alice went out of the room, hubby smiled contentedly.

"It worked! It worked!" he observed under his breath.

In the case of a depth bomb, used against submarines, it is different the explosion causing so great a water pressure on the side of the submarine as to cause its walls to collapse or open its seams sufficiently to admit water and cause it to sink.

Good Taste

By FRANCINE MARKEL

By FRANCINE MARFEL

DEAR MISS MARKEL: Almost everywhere I go I see people cut meat with their knives in the right hand, lay the knife down on the plate, switch the fork to the right hand, pick up the piece of meat, switch the fork back to the left hand, cut another portion, switch it back to the right hand to again convey the meat to the mouth, and so on ad infinitum. Could this awkward manner of eating possibly be correct? Wouldn't it be much simpler to convey each piece to the mouth with the fork in the left hand?—Wondering.

Answer—This does not seem like motion, but many well-bred persons do it.

When eating knife foods the knife should be held in the right hand, the fork in the left. Each portion cut off should be conveyed to the mouth with the fork, prongs down, held in the left hand, only one mouthful being cut off at a time, of course. It is not necessary to switch the fork from the left to the right hand each time a portion of meat is lifted to the mouth.

When no knife is used the fork should be held in the right hand, prongs up, to convey food to the mouth.

Today's Yesterdays, July 17, 1676—Marie d'Aubray, Marquise de Brinvilliers, 46, the most celebrated murderess in French history, attempted to commit suicide by swallowing a pin. Vigilant warders frustrated the attempt, and prevented the disappointment of the nobility and the gentry, including the reigning ladies of fashion and beauty, who had gathered in a Paris Square to see an executioner decapitate her that morning.

Her crimes were not detected until her lover, the Seigneur de Sainte-Croix, was poisoned by mistake. He didn't know it was a mistake, and vengefully blurted out her evil deeds.

July 17, 1790—Thomas Saint, Englishman, received a patent on what was probably the first sewing machine. This was half a century before Howe, the American, was made rich by what is popularly regarded as the first sewing-machine. Apparently Saint got no further with his machine than patenting it, for it was not even known he had received a patent until more than a century later.

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

WHAT ARE YOU AFRAID OF?

You can make a fairly accurate check on yourself by asking yourself what you are afraid of? and why? and what you can do about about it?

Nearly everybody is afraid of something.

Some men are afraid of dogs. . . . Perhaps they were frightened, or bit, by dogs and can give you several good reasons for their dislike. . . . The fact is, deep underneath they fear them.

Cats frighten some men and women. . . . They don't yowl when a cat comes into a room, but they can't bear to touch them. The fear may go far back into the past, beyond even that time in Egypt when cats were worshiped—partly because men feared them. . . . Not much can be done about that. After all, there's no law compelling anybody to love cats.

Some women fear mice and rats or any insect, or men kill even harmless snakes because they are really afraid of them.

Some grownup men and women can't endure even a little blood flowing from a cut. They turn pale and faint.

Or they get dizzy at even low heights, or shudder in the dark, or can't stand a closed room, or are afraid when they are alone. Or get desperate when in crowds, or shrink away from any strong emotion.

Almost every man or woman or child has some small, apparently isolated fears. . . . And these are not terribly important unless they are "babied" and encouraged.

But there are others, tragic people, who are afraid of being alive. They were born, physically, like everybody else, but they have never been fully and joyfully born into the lively, fascinating, challenging experience of living on this exciting earth. . . . They are afraid of the most important experience we can have, and they MUST do something about that.

What are YOU afraid of?

QUICK THINKING

A college student arose from his table in a fashionable dining room and walked toward the door.

"Thank ye, no. I never smoke wi' gloves on. I canna stand the smell of burning leather."

ON THE JUMP

"No, not if we are pedestrians."

Hints On Etiquette

It is not considered a breach of etiquette to use a handkerchief at the table. However it should be used as unobstrusively as possible.

LIFE'S HAZARDS

This I'm sure I do not ask—
To be quit of every task
And to settle down and bask
In the sun.
While I live I want to stay
Knowing need from day to day,
With a goal adown the way
Still unwon.

I don't want to sit about,
Free from every care and doubt,
With my problems all worked out—
That's no fun!
When I wake I want to say:
I've a job ahead today
And I'm hopeful that I may
Get it done.
I don't want to be secure.
I don't want my winnings sure.
I want hardships to endure
Now and then.
I have blundered and I've strayed,
I've been troubled and dismayed,
But I want to be afraid
Times again.

While I fear and while I strive,
And do battle to survive,
While I worry, I'm alive!
Be it said,
For the souls who can remain
Undisturbed by care or pain
Are the hopelessly insane
And the dead.

NAVAL NOTES

By M. L. NIXON
Naval Recruiter, Second Floor Federal Building

The signal flags used by naval vessels are the result of developments over several hundreds of years. The shapes, designs and colors are restricted to those easily distinguishable. At first the national flags of the ships were used, and later the flags of foreign countries were used for signal purposes. This use of the flags of foreign nations particularly in emergency codes adopted at sea, persisted long after official code flags had been adopted by the British navy, and was in vogue in the British navy and the American navy during the American revolution. At first the "codes" were very simple and contained only a few easily remembered signals. The red flag, as a signal of battle, was not of English origin, but was one of the unwritten customs of the sea. The present day custom in time of battle is to hoist a small set of the national colors to the highest point on the ship. This is usually the mainmast.

To men of the sea the Black Horse flag is the symbol of succor on the high seas. The origin of the term dates back to the time when the marine underwriters themselves had to carry on what little salvage there was in American waters. In foggy weather they stationed men and horses on the Atlantic Capes, with orders to the men to get immediate word to them the moment they sighted a ship in distress off shore—"Immediately even if you have to kill a horse."

Men To Register For Street Work

City Engineer Throop Explains Rules, Rate Of Pay And Work Period

Relative to the city's program of treet repairing here, City Engineer Glenn R. Throop today outlined the procedure as to how persons who owe delinquent property tax are to register for employment. One half of their wage will be applied on their back taxes and the remainder given to the workers.

His statement follows:

Men who wish to register to work out delinquent city taxes for work on the resurfacing of streets may fill out registration cards on the third floor of the city building, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

It will be necessary for the taxpayer to sign the registration card and if he personally is not going to work, he must state who will work for him and his relationship to the worker.

He must also give the location of his property. Taxes for 1934 and before may be worked.

The labor rates as set by council last January will prevail. Unskilled labor, 40 cents per hours, payable 20 in cash and 20 cents on taxes.

If the taxpayer is not personally going to work, his representative must be approved by council.

The city has 58 men now registered from last February who signed up for snow removal which will be worked off first.

Working hours will be from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and 12:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. five days per week. Men will be allowed two weeks work per period.

Friends of Clifford G. Pollock will be interested to know that he is to occupy the pulpit of the Highland U. P. church, at the morning worship, Sunday at 10:45. This is Rev. Pollock's home church, and his appearance will be greeted, not only by his many friends in this church, but many in other local denominations. Last year Rev. Pollock preached during the vacation of the pastor, Dr. D. L. Ferguson, and numerous requests were made to have him again this year.

For several summers Rev. Pollock was in charge of the religious training at the Fred L. Rentz, Y. M. C. A. camp, and has many friends among the boys who attend Camp Rentz. With practically a full schedule of preaching this summer, Mr. Pollock was unable to give any time to camp activities.

Rev. Pollock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Pollock, 413 Garfield avenue. He has completed two years of study at the Princeton Theological Seminary and expects to return there in September for his final year. After his graduation next May, he plans to enter the Presbyterian ministry.

Coupe Driven 100,000 Miles To Be Exhibited

To Be Demonstrated By Atlantic Refining Company Showing Oil Test

Local car owners and auto men have a chance Saturday to examine a Plymouth coupe which was driven 100,000 miles recently without repair to any lubricated motor part, carbon-removal, or piston ring change. Part of a fleet of six low priced stock cars used by The Atlantic Refining Company to test a new oil three times stronger than average, the car traveled the equivalent of ten years of average motoring with less wear than the average motorist expects in one tenth the distance covered by each car in the fleet.

The car will be exhibited at show room of J. R. Rick Motor Car Co. Dodge & Plymouth distributors, 470 East Washington St.

Men To Register For Street Work

City Engineer Throop Explains Rules, Rate Of Pay And Work Period

Relative to the city's program of street repairing here, City Engineer Glenn R. Throop today outlined the procedure as to how persons who owe delinquent property tax are to register for employment. One half of their wage will be applied on their back taxes and the remainder given to the workers.

His statement follows:

Men who wish to register to work out delinquent city taxes for work on the resurfacing of streets may fill out registration cards on the third floor of the city building, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

It will be necessary for the taxpayer to sign the registration card and if he personally is not going to work, he must state who will work for him and his relationship to the worker.

He must also give the location of his property. Taxes for 1934 and before may be worked.

The labor rates as set by council last January will prevail. Unskilled labor, 40 cents per hours, payable 20 in cash and 20 cents on taxes.

If the taxpayer is not personally going to work, his representative must be approved by council.

The city has 58 men now registered from last February who signed up for snow removal which will be worked off first.

Working hours will be from 8 a. m. to 12 noon and 12:30 p. m. to 4:30 p. m. five days per week. Men will be allowed two weeks work per period.

Coupe Driven 100,000 Miles To Be Exhibited

To Be Demonstrated By Atlantic Refining Company Showing Oil Test

Local car owners and auto men have a chance Saturday to examine a Plymouth coupe which was driven 100,000 miles recently without repair to any lubricated motor part, carbon removal, or piston ring change. Part of a fleet of six low priced stock cars used by The Atlantic Refining Company to test a new oil three times stronger than average, the car traveled the equivalent of ten years of average motoring with less wear than the average motorist expects in one tenth the distance covered by each car in the fleet.

The car will be exhibited at show room of J. R. Rick Motor Car Co. Dodge & Plymouth distributors, 479 East Washington St.

COURT REFUSES NEW TRIAL FOR RICHARD LEWIS

Judge James A. Chambers Hands Down Opinion In Fifth Ward Election Case

Motions for arrest of judgment and for a new trial were refused in an opinion handed down today by Judge James A. Chambers, in the case of former Alderman Richard R. Lewis, convicted of irregularities in connection with ballots cast for alderman of the fifth ward in the last November election.

The case came before the court on three counts of the indictment. The first charged, changing, altering, and defacing ballots; the second, violation of official duty as alderman and ex-officio Justice of the Peace as custodian of a ballot box, and the third neglect in the keeping of the ballot box. The arrest of judgment was asked particularly with reference to the second count.

On the strength of reports that there had been irregularities in connection with the election, the court ordered a grand jury investigation, with the result that Lewis was convicted on charges which follows:

The fight at the election between Samuel Bassano and Lewis, the latter winning out following the controversy over the count. At the trial Lewis denied that he had anything to do with changing of ballots.

Following his conviction he made application for a new trial.

Allotments Made By WPA To Two Western States

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The WPA today announced allotments totaling $54,422 to Idaho and Nevada counties for further aid in the defensive fight against the "Mormon cricket", dred insect scourage of the western range country.

The WPA said:

"Appearing this year out of their mountain valley nestling places in numbers never before equalled in history, the "cannibal cricket", as it is sometimes called is moving in the biggest swarms close upon the cultivated lands of Idaho, Montana and Nevada, destroying hundreds of thousands of dollars in crops and range grass. By eating the seeds of the range grass, the crickets prevent the grass from reseeding itself. Thus, the insects are an important factor in soil erosion."

COURT REFUSES NEW TRIAL FOR RICHARD LEWIS

Judge James A. Chambers Hands Down Opinion In Fifth Ward Election Case

Motions for arrest of judgment and for a new trial were refused in an opinion handed down today by Judge James A. Chambers, in the case of former Alderman Richard R. Lewis, convicted of irregularities in connection with ballots cast for alderman of the fifth ward in the last November election.

The case came before the court on three counts of the indictment. The first charged, changing, altering, and defacing ballots; the second, violation of official duty as alderman and ex-officio Justice of the Peace as custodian of a ballot box, and the third neglect in the keeping of the ballot box. The arrest of judgment was asked particularly with reference to the second count.

On the strength of reports that there had been irregularities in connection with the election, the court ordered a grand jury investigation, with the result that Lewis was convicted on charges which follows:

The fight at the election between Samuel Bassano and Lewis, the latter winning out following the controversy over the count. At the trial Lewis denied that he had anything to do with changing of ballots.

Following his conviction he made application for a new trial.

Allotments Made By WPA To Two Western States

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—The WPA today announced allotments totaling $54,422 to Idaho and Nevada counties for further aid in the defensive fight against the "Mormon cricket", dred insect scourage of the western range country.

The WPA said:

"Appearing this year out of their mountain valley nestling places in numbers never before equalled in history, the "cannibal cricket", as it is sometimes called, is moving in the biggest swarms close upon the cultivated lands of Idaho, Montana and Nevada, destroying hundreds of thousands of dollars in crops and range grass. By eating the seeds of the range grass, the crickets prevent the grass from reseeding itself. Thus, the insects are an important factor in soil erosion."

Hamilton Reaches Boston In Journey; Boosting Landon

G. O. P. Chairman See Republican Sweep In New England States

(International News Service)

BOSTON, July 17.—Assured of the support of former governor Joseph B. Ely and disgruntled Democrats loyal to him, national Republican chairman John D. M. Hamilton arrived here today to climax his whirlwind tour of New England states booming Gov. Alfred M. Landon for president.

Confident his tour had touched off a Republican sweep along the north Atlantic seaboard, Hamilton declared:

"I'm going to be able to tell Governor Landon and Colonel Knox that they're not only going to be able to carry New England, but they're going to carry it with the greatest majority a national ticket has ever received.

Hamilton came by train from Providence, R. I., where last night before an audience of G. O. P. field workers he extolled Governor Landon, and attacked President Roosevelt and "Jobmaster Jim" Farley, Democratic campaign manager.

Previously he had breakfasted at Springfield with former governor Ely, during which the former Democratic Bay State chief executive pledged his support to Governor Landon. Later at Harwinton, Conn., he addressed 700 Republican workers at the retreat of national committeeman J. Henry Roraback, and then went to Providence to be dinner guest of Senator Jesse H. Metcalfe prior to his address.

Social Service In The Early Church

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Acts 20:35—"He himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 19 is Acts 4:32-25; 6:3-7; 9:36-39; II Cor. 8:1-9; I Johns 3:13-18, the Golden Text being Act 20:35, "He himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.")

"Behold, how these Christians love one another." This was the comment of the Roman world upon the followers of Jesus in the early church. They were poor, gathered as they were from the lowest strata of society, yet they cared and shared with one another in such fashion as to forever set the standard for the spirit, and to a large degree, for the method of social service work.

Community Of Goods

Entirely apart from any law of church or state they practiced among themselves a beautiful community of goods. "And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and soul: and not one of them said that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common . . . For neither was there among them any that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold, and laid them at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto each, according as any one had need." But this was a community of goods based upon and growing out of a common faith and spirit and attitude. There could be one purse because there was one faith and "one heart and soul." It was a communism that grew not out of atheism, but out of a common faith in and love for Christ and his church.

No Race Discrimination

True social service must be free from racial discrimination. "Now in these days when the number of the disciples was multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration." Whether they were right or wrong in this suspicion of racial discrimination, they certainly got a square deal in the election of the seven deacons appointed to administer relief to the poor, for every one of the seven bears a Greek name, Stephen, Philip, Prochoras, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas and Nicolaus. Surely, here was a relief program free from political or racial discrimination as should always be the case in caring for the needy.

Personal Not Proxy

The relief of the needy must never be entirely handed over to government or social agencies to the exclusion of personal serving love on the part of individuals. It must not all be done by proxy through professional social workers. There must, of course, be such agencies supported by our taxes or voluntary contributions. But these can never take the place of such folk as "Dorcas, the woman full of good works and alms deeds which she did," by whose dead body "stood all the widows, weeping, and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them."

The Cross And Social Service

The Macedonians who gathered their offerings for the famine stricken Jews of Jerusalem set the ideal for all time in relief work. They were not rich except in love. "In much proof of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality." "First they gave their own selves to the Lord." "Knowing the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ that though he was rich yet for our sakes he became poor that we through his poverty might become rich." Thus the cross is the inspiration and example of all true social service—whether in the early church or among us today.

Five Hundred At Work On NYA

According to a statement issued today by N. L. Lichtenwalner, state director of the National Emergency Council, 429 persons were at work in Lawrence County on May 1, in the National Youth Administration projects.

The projects include improvement of playgrounds, camping facilities, organization of indoor recreational activities, repair and maintenance of community youth centers and many other activities.

EXPO VISITORS STOPPING HERE

Cleveland's Great Lakes Exposition is showing some reaction in hotel business and inquiries at the New Castle Motor Club it was revealed today. In spite of the hot summer which usually means light business the Castleton Hotel registrations are holding up in mid-winter form. Many tourists from the east prefer to stop over at New Castle for the night and then make Cleveland in the early hours of the next morning. Returning they seem to leave Cleveland in the late afternoon and stop over here for the night.

Inquiries for road conditions between here and Cleveland have increased this summer according to B. N. Hanlon, manager of the New Castle Motor Club and the only apparent reason seems to be the exposition.

Altoona Man Is Suicide Victim

Following concurrence by the house in senate amendments which had reduced the amount of the appropriation, the measure was signed by presiding officers of both branches of the legislature.

A companion measure for the administration's flood control program, the bill was introduced by Reps. Samuel Weiss, Allegheny, and Hiram G. Andrews, both Democrats.

Hamilton Reaches Boston In Journey; Boosting Landon

G. O. P. Chairman See Republican Sweep In New England States

(International News Service)

BOSTON, July 17.—Assured of the support of former governor Joseph B. Ely and disgruntled Democrats loyal to him, national Republican chairman John D. M. Hamilton arrived here today to climax his whirlwind tour of New England states booming Gov. Alfred M. Landon for president.

Confident his tour had touched off a Republican sweep along the north Atlantic seaboard, Hamilton declared:

"I'm going to be able to tell Governor Landon and Colonel Knox that they're not only going to be able to carry New England, but they're going to carry it with the greatest majority a national ticket has ever received.

Hamilton came by train from Providence, R. I., where last night before an audience of G. O. P. field workers he extrolled Governor Landon, and attacked President Roosevelt and "Jobmaster Jim" Farley, Democratic campaign manager.

Previously he had breakfasted at Springfield with former governor Ely, during which the former Democratic Bay State chief executive pledged his support to Governor Landon. Later at Harwinton, Conn., he addressed 700 Republican workers at the retreat of national committeeman J. Henry Rorabeck, and then went to Providence to be dinner guest of Senator Jesse H. Metcalfe prior to his address.

Social Service In The Early Church

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Acts 20:35—"He himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 19 is Acts 4:32-25; 6:3-7; 9:36-39; II Cor. 8:1-9; I Johns 3:13-18, the Golden Text being Act 20:35, "He himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.")

"Behold, how these Christians love one another" This was the comment of the Roman world upon the followers of Jesus in the early church. They were poor, gathered as they were from the lowest strata of society, yet they cared and shared with one another in such fashion as to forever set the standard for the spirit, and to a large degree, for the method of social service work.

Community Of Goods

Entirely apart from any law of church or state they practiced among themselves a beautiful community of goods. "And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and soul: and not one of them said that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common . . . For neither was there among them any that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold, and laid them at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto each, according as any one had need." But this was a community of goods based upon and growing out of a common faith and spirit and attitude. There could be one purse because there was one faith and "one heart and soul." It was a communism that grew not out of atheism, but out of a common faith in and love for Christ and his church.

No Race Discrimination

True social service must be free from racial discrimination. "Now in these days when the number of the disciples was multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration." Whether they were right or wrong in this suspicion of racial discrimination, they certainly got a square deal in the election of the seven deacons appointed to adminster relief to the poor, for every one of the seven bears a Greek name, Stephen, Philip, Prochoras, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas and Nicolaus. Surely, here was a relief program free from political or racial discrimination as should always be the case in caring for the needy.

Personal Not Proxy

The relief of the needy must never be entirely handed over to government or social agencies to the exclusion of personal serving love on the part of individuals. It must not all be done by proxy through professional social workers. There must, of course, be such agencies supported by our taxes or voluntary contributions. But these can never take the place of such folk as "Dorcas, the woman full of good works and alms deeds which she did," by whose dead body "stood all the widows, weeping, and showing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while she was with them."

The Cross And Social Service

The Macedonians who gathered their offerings for the famine stricken Jews of Jerusalem set the ideal for all time in relief work. They were not rich except in love. "In much proof of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality." "First they gave their own selves to the Lord," "Knowing the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ that though he was rich yet for our sakes he became poor that we through his poverty might become rich." Thus the cross is the inspiration and example of all true social service—whether in the early church or among us today.

Five Hundred At Work On NYA

According to a statement issued today by N. L. Lichtenwalner, state director of the National Emergency Council, 429 persons were at work in Lawrence County on May 1, in the National Youth Administration projects.

The projects include improvement of playgrounds, camping facilities, organization of indoor recreational activities, repair and maintenance of community youth centers and many other activities.

EXPO VISITORS STOPPING HERE

Cleveland's Great Lakes Exposition is showing some reaction in hotel business and inquiries at the New Castle Motor Club it was revealed today. In spite of the hot summer which usually means light business the Castleton Hotel registrations are holding up in mid-winter form. Many tourists from the east prefer to stop over at New Castle for the night and then make Cleveland in the early hours of the next morning. Returning they seem to leave Cleveland in the late afternoon and stop over here for the night.

Inquiries for road conditions between here and Cleveland have increased this summer according to B. N. Hanlon, manager of the New Castle Motor Club and the only apparent reason seems to be the exposition.

Altoona Man Is Suicide Victim

Walks Into Store, Wounds Woman And Then Turns Gun On Himself

(International News Service)

ALTOONA, Pa., July 17.—William Thompson, 55, died here today of a self-inflicted revolver bullet in what police said was an attempted murder and suicide.

Thompson, according to authorities, entered the store of Miss Sarah Cox, 39, shot and wounded the woman, and then turned the gun on himself. Detectives were unable to say what prompted the act.

At Altoona hospital, Miss Cox's condition was described as not serious. It had previously been reported Thompson's wounds were also superficial.

LOAN ORGANIZATION DINES

Third Revenue Measure Passed

Special Session Adopts Three Mill Personal Tax Bill Last Night

SESSION ADJOURNS TO MONDAY NIGHT

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Facing another relief crisis early next week for the state's half million needy, the special session of the legislature paused in week-end adjournment today with but $36,000,000 of its $45,000,000 relief appropriation passed.

Work of reconciling political differences holding up enactment of the remainder of the relief appropriation and aggregated appropriations for the emergency session—expected to total approximately $50,000,000—was left until next week after both houses passed finally the three-mill personal property tax increase. It was the third revenue measure to be enacted during the eleven weeks of the session.

Little Immediate Aid

Passage of the bill, however, meant solving the troublesome relief problem that will develop over the week-end. The last checks of the $3,000,000 "stop gap" appropriation will be sent out next Tuesday, and unless administration leaders can find a way of providing additional emergency aid until tax anticipation notes can be sold on the taxes passed, there will be no funds for the state's 567,000 needy persons.

Following passage of the personal property levy, estimated by the department of revenue to yield $18,000,000 for relief purposes, both branches of the legislature adjourned for the week. A move by Sen. Frank J. Harris, (R) Allegheny, to keep the senate in session to "consider" means of avoiding the threatening relief crisis was defeated.

Increase Personal Property Levy

The latest revenue measure, increasing the present personal property levy from one to four mills, was passed finally in the senate by a vote of 31 to 12, with 18 Democrats and 13 Republicans voting for the bill. In the house, the measure was approved 113 to 21, with 94 Democrats and 19 Republicans balloting in support of the increased levy.

Final passage of the measure, originally planned by the administration to raise $40,000,000 came after two days of almost continuous political caucuses and committee meetings that left other legislative matters practically at a standstill.

Signed By Governor

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Gov. George H. Earle today signed the four-mill personal property tax measure passed finally by both branches of the legislature late yesterday.

After approving the bill, which will provide an estimated $18,000,000 for relief purposes, the chief executive, accompanied by Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, left by plane for Canada, where he will spend the week-end.

Roosevelt Will Officially Open Texas Centennial

(International News Service)

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 17.—Fort Worth's much-heralded frontier centennial, starring Billy Rose's production "Jumbo," will open informally this evening before several hundred newspapermen.

Meanwhile, officials of the frontier centennial today made final preparations for the formal opening tomorrow. President Roosevelt is scheduled to close an electrical circuit by radio from aboard his sailing vessel in the North Atlantic. The impulse will cut a lariat, formally opening the show in the afternoon.

WATCH SPEEDING, WARNING TODAY

City police kept sharp watch for speeding automobiles along New Castle streets today as Chief Ralph A. Criswell sounded a new warning that "this dangerous, high-speed driving must cease."

Criswell instructed cruiser car operators to "keep on the lookout." Patrolmen were also advised to watch for high-speed drivers.

"From many districts came reports that cars are being operated at 65 and 70 miles per hour, and we intend to put a halt to that," the chief made it clear.

He said a warning is going out and that speeding car operators can have only themselves to blame if arrested.

Asserts Coughlin Will Be Rebuked

(International News Service)

HULL, Mass., July 17.—Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Massachusetts state Democratic committee, today stood firm on his statement that a leader in the Roman Catholic church shortly may take the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin to task for its utterances against President Roosevelt.

After telling the Plymouth county Democratic league that Father Coughlin has gone too far in his public attacks on the president", McGrath said:

"In a few days we can expect a leader in the church which Father Coughlin represents to take him in hand for his utterances.

"If this country is not being run to the satisfaction of Father Coughlin why doesn't he return to the country of his birth?"

Woman Credited With Helping To Prevent Shooting Of King Edward, Unknown

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 17.—Possibility the now-famous "woman in gray", who played some part in preventing King Edward's assassination, may be an American was voiced by the London Evening Star today.

At conclusion of an article lauding Special Constable Anthony Gordon Dick, who seized the would-be assassin and saved the king's life, the Star said:

"While the world is applauding Constable Dick's action, identity of the woman who first saw what was happening is kept a close secret by police.

The unknown heroine was a middle-aged woman dressed in gray, but before anyone could speak to her she was hurried away by police.

"She is believed to be an American."

Third Revenue Measure Passed

SESSION ADJOURNS TO MONDAY NIGHT

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Facing another relief crisis early next week for the state's half million needy, the special session of the legislature paused in week-end adjournment today with but $26,000,000 of its $45,000,000 relief appropriation passed.

Work of reconciling political differences holding up enactment of the remainder of the relief appropriation and aggregated appropriations for the emergency session—expected to total approximately $50,000,000—was left until next week after both houses passed finally the three-mill personal property tax increase. It was the third revenue measure to be enacted during the eleven weeks of the session.

Little Immediate Aid

Passage of the bill, however, meant solving the troublesome relief problem that will develop over the week-end. The last checks of the $3,000,000 "stop gap" appropriation will be sent out next Tuesday, and unless administration leaders can find a way of providing additional emergency aid until tax anticipation notes can be sold on the taxes passed, there will be no funds for the state's 567,000 needy persons.

Following passage of the personal property levy, estimated by the department of revenue to yield $18,000,000 for relief purposes, both branches of the legislature adjourned for the week. A move by Sen. Frank J. Harris, (R) Allegheny, to keep the senate in session to "consider" means of avoiding the threatening relief crisis was defeated.

Increase Personal Property Levy

The latest revenue measure, increasing the present personal property levy from one to four mills, was passed finally in the senate by a vote of 31 to 12, with 18 Democrats and 13 Republicans voting for the bill. In the house, the measure was approved 113 to 21, with 94 Democrats and 19 Republicans balloting in support of the increased levy.

Final passage of the measure, originally planned by the administration to raise $40,000,000 came after two days of almost continuous political caucuses and committee meetings that left other legislative matters practically at a standstill.

Signed By Governor

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Gov. George H. Earle today signed the four-mill personal property tax measure passed finally by both branches of the legislature late yesterday.

After approving the bill, which will provide an estimated $18,000,000 for relief purposes, the chief executive, accompanied by Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, left by plane for Canada, where he will spend the week-end.

Roosevelt Will Officially Open Texas Centennial

(International News Service)

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 17.—Fort Worth's much-heralded frontier centennial, starring Billy Rose's production "Jumbo," will open informally this evening before several hundred newspapermen.

Meanwhile, officials of the frontier centennial today made final preparations for the formal opening tomorrow. President Roosevelt is scheduled to close an electrical circuit by radio from aboard his sailing vessel in the North Atlantic. The impulse will cut a lariat, formally opening the show in the afternoon.

WATCH SPEEDING, WARNING TODAY

City police kept sharp watch for speeding automobiles along New Castle streets today as Chief Ralph A. Criswell sounded a new warning that "this dangerous, high-speed driving must cease."

Criswell instructed cruiser car operators to "keep on the lookout." Patrolmen were also advised to watch for high-speed drivers.

"From many districts came reports that cars are being operated at 65 and 70 miles per hour, and we intend to put a halt to that," the chief made it clear.

He said a warning is going out and that speeding car operators can have only themselves to blame if arrested.

Asserts Coughlin Will Be Rebuked

(International News Service)

HULL, Mass., July 17.—Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Massachusetts state Democratic committee, today stood firm on his statement that a leader in the Roman Catholic church shortly may take the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin to task for its utterances against President Roosevelt.

After telling the Plymouth county Democratic league that Father Coughlin has gone too far in his public attacks on the president", McGrath said:

"In a few days we can expect a leader in the church which Father Coughlin represents to take him in hand for his utterances.

"If this country is not being run to the satisfaction of Father Coughlin why doesn't he return to the country of his birth?"

"While the world is applauding Constable Dick's action, identity of the woman who first saw what was happening is kept a close secret by police.

The unknown heroine was a middle-aged woman dressed in gray, but before anyone could speak to her she was hurried away by police.

"She is believed to be an American."

FIGHT MITES AND LICE ON CHICKENS

Laying flocks may come through the winter with only a few lice, but the few which survive become the parents of many young generations in warm weather.

Examine your birds for lice and if there are enough to annoy the birds, give them a treatment followed shortly by a second one.

Lice can be found on the feathers, especially in the regions of the thighs and fluffs. If numerous, the lice will have eaten the fluff off individual feathers, making them threadbare to the barbs. Most treatments only kill the lice and do not destroy the lice eggs. These lice eggs hatch and produce another brood. For this reason the treatment should be duplicated 10 days later to destroy the young brood. This is known as the double treatment.

For small flocks, lice powders that require individual treatments can be used. For laying flocks, nicotine sulphate used on the roosts is practical. This can be applied with an oil can or paint brush at the rate of about half a pint to 125 linear feet of roosts. Nicotine sulphate is a concentrated tobacco liquid and is sold under different trade names.

Mites also reproduce very fast when the weather becomes warm. They can be controlled by painting the roosts with creosote. This creosote soaks into the cracks and crevices and destroys the mites by contact. Mites are also killed when they crawl over the creosoted area to get on the birds at night. To control mites completely, do not allow the birds to sleep on the nests.

Lice and mites are not biologically related. Lice have biting mouth parts and feed principally on feathers. They have six legs and belong to the insect family. They live on the birds at all times.

Mites live in the cracks and crevices on the roosts and houses and only go on the birds to feed, usually at night. They have sucking mouth parts and suck blood from the birds. Mites have eight legs and belong to the spider family.

PREPARE PLANTING FOR 1937 RASPBERRY CROP

While the raspberry harvest for 1937 may seem a long way off just at this time, it is nevertheless true that the care and attention given the planting this season will in large measure determine next year's harvest.

As soon as picking is completed, the canes which have just fruited should be removed from the patch and burned. Their removal will relieve some of the crowding to which the new shoots are subjected. Thus, these shoots will be able to develop into stronger and larger canes for next year. It has been shown that the productivity of a cane depends very largely upon its size.

While the well-cared-for planting has been cultivated up to and even during harvest, it will not be wise to continue this cultivation later during the season. After the old canes have been removed, the ground should be thoroughly conditioned and seeded to a cover crop.

This seeding is very commonly neglected by growers but it is extremely important. The cover crop has at least three advantages over the common practice of leaving the ground bare after cultivation is discontinued: (1) It produces a large volume of organic matter which helps maintain or build up soil fertility. (2) it encourages early maturity and therefore greater hardness in the raspberry canes, and (3 helps to retard erosion.

Millet or sudan grass will make a satisfactory cover crop. Oats or buckwheat also are sometimes used.

Superphosphate, at the rate of 150 to 300 pounds an acre, often is used in seeding the cover crop, but high-nitrogen fertilizers should not be used at this time because of the danger of stimulating late growth of canes and consequent immaturity.

LAYING HOUSES NEED SUMMER VENTILATION

Layers confined to the houses during the summer need comfortable quarters if satisfactory production is expected. Furthermore, the size of egg may be affected by excessively high temperatures.

Windows underneath the dropping boards should be open. If there are no windows in that location, openings should be provided. It is customary to provide an opening every 10 feet large enough for at least a 3-light cellar sash.

Glass windows in front and along the sides of the house should be removed during the hot summer months.

In some houses the dropping boards can be pulled out from the back wall, allowing air to circulate in the back part of the house Some houses, especially those of the shed type, have roosting quarters which are very hot and poorly ventilated.

In some instances, conditions would be greatly improved if the dropping boards were removed and roosts placed above a droppings pit. These can be built stationary in the back of the house or can be built in sections which can be placed along the sides or toward the back of the pen. Such a pit does not need to be cleaned so often as dropping boards. Then, too, there is the advantage of lower roosts. Pullets of the heavy breeds will learn to roost more quickly. Jumping from roosts placed nearer the floor may result in fewer internal injuries.

TIMELY HINTS GIVEN FOR COOLNESS IN HOT WEATHER

The first requisite for being cool and collected is a simplified schedule of grooming and dressing, says Miss Mary Vogle, home economics extension representative.

Simple, becoming cotton or linen dresses are first choice for warm weather. They may be inexpensive, so have several and keep them fresh and crisp. Pleated skirts are lovely, but do not add to ease of laundering in hot weather. Choose designs with the ease of ironing in mind.

Arrange the hair simply. It will add to your comfort if you arrange it off the face as much as possible. Keep it immaculately clean by shampooing it each week or two. Now is the time you can dry it in the sun.

A daily cleansing bath with warm water and soap is essential to one's comfort and good grooming. A cool shower or sponge bath is refreshing and doubly so if followed with witch hazel or toilet water. There are many good deordorants and non-perspirants which are inexpensive and add much to hot weather comfort.

The face should be washed with warm soapy water or cleansed with cold cream before applying powder. Apply powder lightly.

Nails filed rather short to a neat oval will look well, even through the trials of jelly making. Lemon, tomato, or rhubarb juice will remove stain.

At no time of the year do we need to give more thought to foot comfort. No one can look cool and crisp if suffering from tired, aching feet. Much of this discomfort can be eliminated by giving more thought to foot wear. No article of clothing is more important. Try to get well-fitting shoes and hose. If your feet are hard to fit and you have finally found a satisfactory last, stick to that last, Miss Vogle urges.

A frequent change of shoes and hose adds to foot comfort. Never put on hose a second time without washing. They are easily washed in luke-warm soap suds. Use a mild soap always and rinse them thoroughly. Hang them up carefully. Mend them before putting them away, and save yourself the annoyance of finding you have no hose ready to put on.

Sandals are cool, but too often give insufficient support to the foot. Low, or moderately low, broad heels are the kind to choose for much walking or in working either outdoors or about the house.

Patent leathers, so popular this season, are likely to make the feet burn because the finish interferes with ventilation. Perforated shoes add much to foot comfort.

A cool footbath and a rub with witch hazel or alcohol will do much to relieve hot, tired feet.

Driver Of Car Is Held By Police—Alleged To Have Been Drunk

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Struck by a car driven by an intoxicated man, according to police, Robert Harris, 67, died in a hospital here early today as a short-circuited horn which blew and blew led police to the driver of the death car.

According to police who questioned witnesses, the automobile, allegedly driven by James Weston, 37, snatched the elderly man from the street, tossed him high into the air, struck him again as he fell, backed up and ran over his broken body.

As Harris' body crashed down on the machine, the horn was short-circuited, police said. Following the blaring automobile, authorities found Weston in bed. He was arrested and pronounced intoxicated.

The war industries nationalization reform, one of the major planks of the government's socializing platform, was accorded the greatest majority yet given the new government. The vote was 484 to 85.

The vote followed yesterday's approval by the chamber of the Bank of France reform bill.

Driver Of Car Is Held By Police—Alleged To Have Been Drunk

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Struck by a car driven by an intoxicated man, according to police, Robert Harris, 67, died in a hospital here early today as a short-circuted horn which blew and blew led police to the driver of the death car.

According to police who questioned witnesses, the automobile, allegedly driven by James Weston, 37, snatched the elderly man from the street, tossed him high into the air, struck him again as he fell, backed up and ran over his broken body.

As Harris' body crashed down on the machine, the horn was short-circuted, police said. Following the blaring automobile, authorities found Weston in bed. He was arrested and pronounced intoxicated.

Nationalization Plan Is Approved

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 17.—The leftist "popular front" government's plan for nationalization of war industries was overwhelmingly approved by the Chamber of Deputies today as Premier Leon Blum and his aides rushed reforms to appease striking workers throughout the country.

The war industries nationalization reform, one of the major planks of the government's socializing platform, was accorded the greatest majority yet given the new government. The vote was 484 to 85.

The vote followed yesterday's approval by the chamber of the Bank of France reform bill.

3 WAYS OF LOOKING AT IT

And you'll see savings in "ALL 3"

SOME FOLKS tell us they don't believe any gasoline can drive a motor . . . oil top-cylinders . . . and cut down carbon. And they're right! No gasoline, by itself, can do all 3 of those jobs.

But Tydol is not an ordinary gasoline. It is more than a gasoline. It is the finest motor-fuel you ever used, selling at the price of regular gasoline... PLUS a patented top-cylinder lubricant... PLUS an effective carbon-solvent!

It is those extra ingredients, blended into Tydol, at no extra cost to you, that give this modern motor-fuel its "triple-action". Tydol assures you of triple savings through a more powerful, a smoother, a cleaner motor. And it gives you those extra features and extra savings at no extra cost!

Water, Water, Everywhere But Thirsty Young Birds Peck Only At Dewdrops

(International News Service)

DETROIT, Mich.—The starry glistening dewdrop of rhyme and poetry has been found to play a very useful part in life, aside from its general artisticness. It has proven to be the very essence of life itself to the young bird that has just cracked its shell and ventured into the world.

This was recently disclosed as a result of the experiments of Leonard Wing, now of the University of Wisconsin. Wing, who conducted his experiments near Jackson, Mich., discovered that newly-born birds, during their first week of life, do not recognize water unless they see it in the form of a dewdrop.

Wing conducted his experiment with six young pheasants and six young prairie chickens. When he placed pans of water in front of the chicks they ignored the water seemingly unaware of its presence. Next he placed the pans on a level with the chick's eyes. The net result was the same.

Wing then tried placing the birds in a puddle of water on the floor, but, unconscious of its significance, the chicks walked through it without drinking.

Next he placed particles of food in water. The chicks picked out the food and occasionally swallowed a drop of water, but the progress did not educate them to drink. Dipping the bird's beak in the water had the same negative result.

The birds were practically on the verge of dying from thirst when Wing discovered the solution to the problem. He took a pipet (similar to a medicine dropper) filled it half full of water, and squeezed a drop out of the end.

To his delight, the chicks immediately with great excitement on their part, gathered around the end of the pipet. Every time a drop appeared they picked at it.

From his experiment Wing arrived at the deduction that a drop of water at the end of a pipet closely resembles a glistening dewdrop and that, for the first several weeks of its life, the young game bird instinctively seeks dewdrops as a source of its water supply. He concluded that the presence or absence of dew immediately after the birds are hatched may have much to do with whether or not the young birds will survive.

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Ninety-seven prosecutions were brought last week by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture against manufacturers who failed to register feeds and fertilizers. The defendants are subject to fines up to $100 for each offense.

A total of 725 outdoor pools and beaches are being inspected, the source of the water supply is checked, the method of treating the water to kill bacteria is noted, and the equipment used in chlorinating and filtering water is examined and tested. SAYS IMPROVEMENT NEEDED IN FORESTS

HARRISBURG, July 17.—In addition to the control of forest fires and reforestation of waste lands, there is an urgent need for the improvement of existing forest growth in Pennsylvania, Dr. J. F. Bogardus, secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, said today.

The weeding of inferior young forests is imperative if these stands are to be made productive and profitable. If worthless and inferior stands of timber are permitted to develop they will result in worthless material, and the toleration of such conditions is not good forestry, Dr. Bogardus said.

Swimming pools are required to contain an excess of residual chlorine when in use. The work is being carried on by four of the Department of Health's sanitary engineers.

SAYS IMPROVEMENT NEEDED IN FORESTS

HARRISBURG, July 17.—In addition to the control of forest fires and reforestation of waste lands, there is an urgent need for the improvement of existing forest growth in Pennsylvania, Dr. J. F. Bogardus, secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, said today.

The weeding of inferior young forests is imperative if these stands are to be made productive and profitable. If worthless and inferior stands of timber are permitted to develop they will result in worthless material, and the toleration of such conditions is not good forestry, Dr. Bogardus said.

BIRD STUDY

Yesterday the sun rose red and for the first time since the opening of camp the morning air was uncomfortably chilly. But soon after Old Sol shook off the morning mists the air became warmer without losing any of its tonic vigor. It was an ideal morning for bird study. Already a cardinal was sounding its clear "rain" note, while a catbird in a nearby thicket mewed impatiently.

The bird study group consisting of boys in Troops X-15 and V-65 wended its way through the hemlocks to the pool alongside the old mill site near the dam. There a phoebe was seemingly engaged in its setting-up exercises, scooting and twisting crazily over the water. But after it alighted on a stub with a moth in its bill it was concluded that the bird was simply getting its breakfast. A kingfisher rattled downstream on mischief bent. A scarlet tanagar flashed through the woods like a living flame, alighted in a maple and posed long enough to give every boy a good look through the bird glasses.

By the time that the group had reached the Narrows, twelve birds were identified; the dozen including a trio of cedar waxwings, birds that are all too infrequently seen in these woods at this time of the year.

MANY TROUT

Fish seem to be making a good comeback in the Slippery Rock. On numerous occasions bass up to 18 or more inches in length were observed. In one instance two of the boys reported seeing two good-sized suckers; the "suckers" later being identified as rainbow trout. And speaking of rainbow trout, what a wonderful stream it is for them. Unlike our native trout the rainbow can withstand the high temperatures that sometimes prevail. It loves fast, foaming water of which the stream has much. Many sportsmen have voiced the opinion that if the Slippery Rock could be guarded against pollution it would be one of the finest rainbow streams east of the Rockies.

It is difficult to conceive of a more ideal spot for a camp than this one at Kennedy's Mills. As one visitor aptly expressed it: "Camp anywhere along the Slippery Rock would suit me." Woods, meadows and a clear, sparkling stream are all here for the boys to enjoy. It is surprising that more do not avail themselves of the opportunity to attend camp.

At the present writing the campers are enjoying a series of raids. Since yesterday morning the occupants of the various huts have been raiding each other. This morning shoes, jerseys, and various other articles of wear were suspended from one of the flagpoles. Jim Gravencreeter just walked in painted like an Indian, a series of fantastic designs in mercurochrome having been more or less artistically applied to various parts of [illegible]. Jim simply made the mistake of taking a brief nap while [illegible] were on the warpath. Right now the air is filled with threats of what will happen on Friday [illegible] last day of camp in this period.

Pork Prices Should Drop

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 17.—Butter, cheese, eggs and good beef is going to cost more, but potatoes, pork, lamb, poultry and lower grades of beef should cost less for the family table, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported.

Wheat prices are expected to average higher than last year. Feed grain prices also have gone up because of the threatened damage to corn, and reduced crops of oats and barley because of the drought, the report stated.

"A considerable decline in hog prices by late September or early October is forecasted on the basis of a sharply increased supply of slaughtered hogs next fall and winter," the report stated.

"It now seems probable that the low point for prices of better grades of beef cattle was reached in June and that prices will strengthen during the remainder of the summer and fall. But receipts of drought cattle in some markets, together with reasonable factories, will undoubtedly cause a continued decline in prices of the lower grade of butchered cattle."

Break Up Of Great Estates, Warsaw Hint

(International News Service)

WARSAW—An editorial published today by the pro-government "Kurjer Poranny", acting as the mouthpiece of General Skladowski's cabinet, came out with announcement which foreshadows breaking up of the great estates which for centuries have been the backbone of Poland's agricultural stability and culture, and confiscation of extra revenues of great industrial corporations, trusts and holding companies.

The article was believed to be inspired by the present cabinet, which is nervously searching for extra means to re-arm Poland commensurate to the level of Poland's western and eastern neighbors and to win popularity for itself among the pauperized rural population.

On Court House Hill

Sale of land in Perry township belonging to the estate of the late Anna M. French, by the executor, J. L. French to David W. and Lois Leblere for $1,050, has been confirmed by the court.

County commissioners inspected the New Castle-Volant road improvements yesterday and found that concrete has been poured on nearly all of the north end section, and that it is possible to travel over a part of it.

Forms which had been erected to hold the concrete for the north abutment of the new Edenburg bridge were removed yesterday, disclosing a fine piece of concrete work, nearly twenty feet high. Excavations are now being made for the abutments on the south side of the Mahoning river, where it has been necessary to drive piling. The north abutments did not need piling as they are on the solid rock.

Letters of administration have been granted by the register and recorder in the estate of Andrew Majors, late of Wayne township, to Carl Majors; estate of Flora Etta Majors, late of Wayne township, to Carl Majors; estate of Bryant Fowler, late of this city, to Orville Potter; estate of Joseph W. Mayne, late of Ellwood City, to Charles R. Mayne; estate of Bertha E. Ritter, late of New Castle, to George A. Ritter.

Owing to the clouds of dust raised by the heavy trucks which are hauling materials for the Edenburg viaduct, the highway department has oiled the road leading from Hillsville east through the village and down to the old covered bridge. The dust nuisance has been something terrific since the hauling started, the village being under a cloud of dust almost continually. The oiling comes as a welcome relief.

Ellwood City assessors have secured books from the county commissioners office preparatory to making an assessment of the borough. While there is an assessor elected in each ward, the borough law provides that where there is more than one ward, the assessing must be done by the assessors as a body. In other words, all of the assessors must assess all of the wards. This will necessarily take a considerable longer time than it would if each ward assessor assessed his own ward. In this city the ward assessors act independently, but the borough law is different.

According to reports of the game commission the state now owns 807,406 acres of game lands. Thirteen tracts, comprising 3,927 acres have been recently purchased. Most of the land costs anywhere from two to ten dollars per acre, much of it being in the mountainous sections of the state.

In an opinion handed down by Judge W. Walter Braham in the case of Boyd Scott against William F. Zehner and Hiram I. Zehner, trading as Valley Insulating Company, a rule granted on the defendants to show cause why judgment should not be entered against them for want of a sufficient affidavit of defense, is made absolute, and judgment is directed to be entered for $200. The case grew out of a controversy over an advertising contract, the defendant refusing to pay on the grounds that the plaintiff had failed to carry out the terms of the agreement.

The matter of holidays to be observed at the court house seems to be a subject of controversy between Mercer county members of the bar and the court house officials. The bar association, through its secretary, E. G. Francis, has just sent a letter to office holders which reads ::The Mercer County Bar Association has instructed me to call your attention to the fact that you pledged as a candidate for the office which you now are holding, to observe the hours of 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. on Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday, Pennsylvania day, Good Friday, Columbus Day, primary and election days and Armistice Day. The association is of the opinion that good faith with respect to this pledge should be shown and that a breach of the promise is unwarranted in any manner. I am directed to remind you of the days covered by your pledge in order that no further violation of your word may occur."

It will be seen by this that Mercer county is more exacting than Lawrence county. Candidates here have sometimes been asked to pledge themselves along certain lines but there has never been any pledges asked as to the observance of holidays. Consequently our local officials have much for which to be thankful.

HUNT "MAN FROM WASHINGTON" IN GIRL SLAYING

College Girl Shot To Death

Helen Clevenger, 19 Year Old Staten Island College Girl, Is Found Dead

MURDER OCCURS IN ASHEVILLE HOTEL

(International News Service)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 17.—Authorities today were looking for a "man from Washington" in connection with the mysterious slaying here yesterday of pretty Miss Helen Clevenger, and an arrest may be made at any time.

That was the announcement early today of City Detective R. C. Patton, who has been working almost 24 hours in an effort to pierce the mystery surrounding the death of the blonde 19-year-old Staten Island college girl.

Promise Solution

"We are not at liberty to tell why we are looking for a man from Washington or give any indication as to his identity, but we positively believe he can clear up the mystery," Detective Patton said.

The pajama clad body of the girl was found in her hotel room here yesterday morning by her uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger of the University of North Carolina.

She had been shot to death, and there were stab wounds about the face. They apparently had been inflicted with a knife or a pair of scissors.

An exploded .25 caliber pistol shell was found on the floor of her room, but neither the gun from which the shell was fired nor the weapons with which the cuts about the face had been inflicted could be found.

Signs Of Struggle

The room showed signs of a struggle, and a medical examiner stated her slayer apparently had attempted to assault her.

The girl evidently had been shot while kneeling, for she had fallen backwards, with her feet doubled beneath her.

Detective Patton declined to discuss the report that a letter from the "man from Washington" had been found in the girl's room.

"I am not at liberty to say anything about that report," he said.

He wouldn't even admit that such a letter had been found. He also refused to confirm a report that letters to her parents or her diary had been discovered.

"The only thing I can say is that we are looking for a man from Washington.

Asked if he knew whether the man sought had been in Asheville during the past few days, he hesitated for a moment and then said "I can't tell you that."

Miss Clevenger had arrived in Asheville with her uncle only last Tuesday, and they had taken rooms just around the corner from each other.

Prophetic Subject Tonight At Outdoor Calvary Tabernacle

Rev. M. L. Lowe, Conference Speaker, Command Interest Nightly

A record week-night crowd heard Rev. M. L. Lowe, of Bible School Park, N. Y., conference speaker at the Calvary Gospel Tabernacle, East New Castle, Thursday evening, give a most interesting discourse on the subject, "A Four-Fold Portrait of Christ."

He held the undivided attention of the audience as he clearly and intelligently explained why the four Gospels were written.

The subject tonight will be "The Great Northern Confederacy," a prophetic message concerning the "near future action of the Russian empire toward other nations during the revival of the old Roman empire."

Three prophetic sermons are planned for Sunday.

The large open air structure with open front and sides, was erected for summer Bible conference use. Rev. R. J. Fredericks, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church, and the speakers committee, are trying to secure as far as possible the highest type of teachers obtainable.

BRITISH CENSOR DECRIES POLITICS IN MOVIE SHOWS

(International News Service)

EASTBOURNE, Sussex—Lord Tyrrell, new film censor, made it quite clear at a meeting of the Cinematograph Exhibition Association here, that he dislikes politics in films.

"It is creeping in," he said, "and I consider this dangerous.

"I have been 30 years a film fan," he continued. "I went to see the best films—now I must need see what you experts would describe as the "worst films."

"It is with impunity that politics are introduced into films in those countries where the cinema is under control of the State, but it would be dangerous to make such an attempt in this country.

"Nothing could be more calculated to arouse the passions of the British public than the introduction on the screen of subjects dealing either with religion or political controversy."

The marriage of Miss Helen Unangst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Unangst to Robert Ernst, both of Edenburg, took place on Wednesday afternoon at four-thirty at the Methodist parsonage with Rev. W. She was attended by her sister, Janet, who was charming in aqua blue crepe with white accessories. Walter Moore was the best man. The wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride at 6:30, to twenty-one guests. The bride's table was beautiful with a large wedding cake and seating eight persons. Guests were from Cleveland and Orwell, Ohio, New Caste and Edenburg. The bride was a graduate of the Union high school class of 1934. The groom was graduated at Cleveland high school class of 1932. Following the dinner the young folks left for a wedding trip to Cleveland. On their return home they will reside in New Castle.

Guardsmen Leave Grove City For Annual Camp

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, July 17.—Eighty-five officers and men of the two local National Guard companies, with staff officers and instructors of the 112th infantry stationed here, left at 5 a. m. today for the annual two weeks' tour of field duty at Indiantown Gap, Lebanon county. For the first time in local military history, which covers a period of 51 years, the troops moved by motor truck.

Earlier in the week, all baggage was shipped to camp by rail freight. It is expected that by next year, all men and equipment will be moved by trucks.

Both local units go to camp with numerous changes in officer and non-commissioned personnel. The resignation of First Lieutenant D. C. Porter, commanding first battalion headquarters company, and his junior officer, Lieut. Samuel Coleman, recently, brought commissions to two non-commissioned officers and a promotion to Lieut. Paul Kifer, who was in command of the company, with Lieut. Paul McNeish as his junior. Lieut. James Griffith was second in command of the regimental headquarters company, commanded by Captain Frank Poellman.

Carnegie Auditorium Is Now Being Razed

College Girl Shot To Death

Helen Clevenger, 19 Year Old Staten Island College Girl, Is Found Dead

MURDER OCCURS IN ASHEVILLE HOTEL

(International News Service)

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 17.—Authorities today were looking for a "man from Washington" in connection with the mysterious slaying here yesterday of pretty Miss Helen Clevenger, and an arrest may be made at any time.

That was the announcement early today of City Detective R. C. Patton, who has been working almost 24 hours in an effort to pierce the mystery surrounding the death of the blonde 19-year-old Staten Island college girl.

Promise Solution

"We are not at liberty to tell why we are looking for a man from Washington or give any indication as to his identity, but we positively believe he can clear up the mystery," Detective Patton said.

The pajama clad body of the girl was found in her hotel room here yesterday morning by her uncle, Prof. W. L. Clevenger of the University of North Carolina.

She had been shot to death, and there were stab wounds about the face. They apparently had been inflicted with a knife or a pair of scissors.

An exploded .25 caliber pistol shell was found on the floor of her room, but neither the gun from which the shell was fired nor the weapons with which the cuts about the face had been inflicted could be found.

Signs Of Struggle

The room showed signs of a struggle, and a medical examiner stated her slayer apparently had attempted to assault her.

The girl evidently had been shot while kneeling, for she had fallen backwards, with her feet doubled beneath her.

Detective Patton declined to discuss the report that a letter from the "man from Washington" had been found in the girl's room.

"I am not at liberty to say anything about that report," he said.

He wouldn't even admit that such a letter had been found. He also refused to confirm a report that letters to her parents or her diary had been discovered.

"The only thing I can say is that we are looking for a man from Washington.

Asked if he knew whether the man sought had been in Asheville during the past few days, he hesitated for a moment and then said "I can't tell you that."

Miss Clevenger had arrived in Asheville with her uncle only last Tuesday, and they had taken rooms just around the corner from each other.

Bible Class Picnic To Be Held Tonight

Members of the Young Married Peoples Bible class of Epworth M. E. church will hold their annual summer picnic this evening at Beech Glen on the Slippery Rock. A picnic dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock.

Prophetic Subject Tonight At Outdoor Calvary Tabernacle

Rev. M. L. Lowe, Conference Speaker, Command Interest Nightly

A record week-night crowd heard Rev. M. L. Lowe, of Bible School Park, N. Y., conference speaker at the Calvary Gospel Tabernacle, East New Castle, Thursday evening, give a most interesting discourse on the subject, "A Four-Fold Portrait of Christ."

He held the undivided attention of the audience as he clearly and intelligently explained why the four Gospels were written.

The subject tonight will be "The Great Northern Confederacy," a prophetic message concerning the "near future action of the Russian empire toward other nations during the revival of the old Roman empire."

Three prophetic sermons are planned for Sunday.

The large open air structure with open front and sides, was erected for summer Bible conference use. Rev. R. J. Fredericks, pastor of the Calvary Presbyterian church, and the speakers committee, are trying to secure as far as possible the highest type of teachers obtainable.

BRITISH CENSOR DECRIES POLITICS IN MOVIE SHOWS

(International News Service)

EASTBOURNE, Sussex—Lord Tyrrell, new film censor, made it quite clear at a meeting of the Cinematograph Exhibition Association here, that he dislikes politics in films.

"It is creeping in," he said, "and I consider this dangerous.

"I have been 30 years a film fan," he continued. "I went to see the best films—now I must need see what you experts would describe as the "worst films."

"It is with impunity that politics are introduced into films in those countries where the cinema is under control of the State, but it would be dangerous to make such an attempt in this country.

"Nothing could be more calculated to arouse the passions of the British public than the introduction on the screen of subjects dealing either with religion or political controversy."

Guardsmen Leave Grove City For Annual Camp

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, July 17.—Eighty-five officers and men of the two local National Guard companies, with staff officers and instructors of the 112th infantry stationed here, left at 5 a. m. today for the annual two weeks' tour of field duty at Indiantown Gap, Lebanon county. For the first time in local military history, which covers a period of 51 years, the troops moved by motor truck.

Earlier in the week, all baggage was shipped to camp by rail freight. It is expected that by next year, all men and equipment will be moved trucks.

Both local units go to camp with numerous changes in officer and non-commissioned personnel. The resignation of First Lieutenant D. C. Porter, commanding first battalion headquarters company, and his junior officer, Lieut. Samuel Coleman, recently, brought commissions to two non-commissioned officers and a promotion to Lieut. Paul Kifer, who was in command of the company, with Lieut. Paul McNeish as his junior. Lieut. James Griffith was second in command of the regimental headquarters company, commanded by Captain Frank Poehlman.

Carnegie Auditorium Is Now Being Razed

The Carnegie auditorium building on South Jefferson street, scene of many civic celebations of the past, today was on its way to oblivion.

The building is being torn down by a wrecking crew of John A. Panella, local building contractor. He recently purchased the structure from the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation.

A Japanese criminologist reports that a study of thousands of criminal records discloses that most criminals are thin—fat men and women rarely turning to crime.

Lively Competition At Bankers' Golf Tourney; Dickey Speaks At Night

High praise and commendation for J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Justice Division, was voiced by Attorney Thomas W. Dickey in his address last night at the dinner which culminated the spirited summer golf tournament of the Lawrence County Bankers' association at the New Castle Field club.

"His work has been outstanding and I think he has done a magnificent job," Dickey declared.

Talk Turns Serious

Before the assembled bank officers, directors and employes who had spent much of the afternoon in competition on the links, Mr. Dickey abruptly cut humorous talk to speak briefly of the crime problem.

"The crime situation in our country is sad," began the attorney speaker on numerous occasions before the banking group. "The headlines are passing many tax bills and it appears as though they're forgotten all about the crime problem."

The talk progressed to figures and then to duty service and here the speaker halted.

"When you're summoned for jury service, gentlemen, you should respond and gladly serve," he said.

Trial and parole procedure were touched upon and Mr. Dickey asserted that it was his opinion the judge who presided over the particular case and the district attorney interested should have the final word when a man makes application for parole, not a state board.

Dickey also spoke in defense of the grand jury, target now of some critics, and said "it should be kept."

Presiding at the dinner was John J. Maher, president of the association and cashier of the Citizens National bank. He conducted a short business meeting before the main address. Attorney W. K. Hamus had given the dinner invocation.

Seated at the tables were officials of all of the county's banking institutions and several outside guests.

The golf matches of the afternoon had occupied the major interest of the participants and when it came time for the presentation of prizes at the dinner the players were ready for the news.

Golf Balls To Winners

President Maher and Attorney Dickey pass out the golf balls, the prizes the winners won.

Winners of the day's play follows:

Low net—George A. Carpenter, 67; Earl P. Lockhart, 68; Joel S. McKee, 68; Thomas M. Hartman, 68.

Blind bogey—J. A. Smith, 77; J. W. Packham, 78; Herman Green, 78.

Low gross—George A. Carpenter, 80; R. E. Morrill, 88; Alfred H. Owens, 90.

Local Man's Stomach Swollen Like Balloon

Recently, a New Castle man stated that he used to feel like a swollen balloon after every meal. He would bloat full of gas and spit up actions liquids for hours after eating. Had headaches daily. This man is one of the hundreds in this city who now praise the double-acting stomach alkalizer, called WHITE SWALLOW—the new, scientific formula of FOUR different remedies for the relief of stomach distress. This man was amazed when he took WHITE SWALLOW. He eats what he wants now without gas or bloating; has no more headaches and says he feels "like a new man".

Acts At Once

WHITE SWALLOW neutralizes acids in the stomach, expels gas, relieves pain, bloat, swelling and headaches. Relief comes immediately. Not habit-forming like soda, and pleasant to take. It settles the stomach at once.

Costs A Penny

Best of all, WHITE SWALLOW costs so little, less than 1c a dose. So it would be a mistake to go on suffering. We are recommending this new, scientific remedy because we know it has helped so many.

Will Place More Men On Projects On City Streets

Two Hundred Additional To Be Called For W. P. A. Jobs Monday

Two hundred additional men will be called for work on the street projects of the city on Monday morning, Captain F. M. Butler, assistant director of the Works Progress Administration announced today. Not all of the two hundred will be added to the net total of the men now at work, as a number of single workers have been removed under orders of Harrisburg.

The retaining wall at the top of Taylor street, leading into Butler avenue will be completed at the end of this week, and these men will be available for other projects.

As fast as they can be used, men will be added to the airport project near Parkstown Corners and inside of a week this project should be running full.

A number of men will be transferred from highway projects next week to city projects, most of them to street projects, Captain Butler said. The WPA is anxious to get as much work done as possible on the street projects before the fall and winter.

Lively Competition At Bankers' Golf Tourney; Dickey Speaks At Night

High praise and commendation for J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the nation's G-men, was voiced by Attorney Thomas W. Dickey in his address last night at the dinner which culminated the spirited summer golf tournament of the Lawrence County Bankers' association at the New Castle Field club.

"His work has been outstanding and I think he has done a magnificent job," Dickey declared.

Talk Turns Serious

Before the assembled bank officers, directors and employes who had spent much of the afternoon in competition on the links, Mr. Dickey interrupted his humorous talk to speak briefly of the crime problem.

"The crime situation in our country is bad," began the attorney, speaker on numerous occasions before the banking group. "The legislatures are passing many tax bills and it appears as though they've forgotten all about the crime problem."

The talk progressed to figures and then to jury service and here the speaker halted.

"When you're summoned for jury service, gentlemen, you should respond and gladly serve," he said.

Trial and parole procedure were touched upon and Mr. Dickey asserted that, in his opinion, the judge who presided over the particular case and the district attorney interested should have the final word when a man makes application for parole, not a state board.

Dickey also spoke in defense of the grand jury, target now of some critics, and said "it should be kept."

Presiding at the dinner was John J. Maher, president of the association and cashier of the Citizens National bank. He conducted a short business meeting before the main address. Attorney W. K. Hugus had given the dinner invocation.

Seated at the tables were officials of all of the county's banking institutions and several outside guests.

The golf matches of the afternoon had occupied the major interest of the participants and when it came time for the presentation of prizes at the dinner the players were ready for the news.

Golf Balls To Winners

President Maher had Attorney Dickey pass out the golf balls, the prizes the winners won.

Winners of the day golf play follows:

Low net—George A. Carpenter, 67; John P. Lockhart, 68; Joel S. McKee, 68; Thomas H. Hartman, 68.

Blind bogey—J. A. Smith, 76; J. F. Pareiman, 78; Herman Green, 78.

Low putts—George A. Carpenter, 30; E. E. McGill, 30; Alfred H. Owens 30.

High gross—Maurice S. Kelley 128.

News Briefs From City Hall

City detectives have not yet given up an investigation into the window breaking at the Westel Bicycle shop and the Bratschie place Wednesday night.

Alex Grieves, youth, of West Washington street was bitten by a dog owned by Roy Keely, 1117 West Washington street, according to a report made to police.

Dick Krouse, 501 Waldo street, youth, who disappeared recently, was found in Beaver Falls, according to a police report. He was returned to his home.

Police received a complaint that boys riding in an alley near Spruce street made so much noise it annoyed a woman who is ill.

Patrolman Thomas Jones reported to headquarters there is a hole in the sidewalk in front of 304 East Washington street. The report was sent to the street department.

Grass And Rubbish Fire Are Reported

Firemen answered three alarms Thursday afternoon and evening for grass and rubbish fires, and a smoke scare. There was no damage in any instance.

At 1:50 in the afternoon, they extinguished a grass fire near the B. R. and P. spur of the B. and O. lines on South Jefferson street, using brooms to sweep out the blaze.

At 6:15 Thursday evening they were called to the Dietterle Block, corner of Moody and Highland avenue, where smoke coming from the incinerator caused people to believe there was a fire.

At 6:40 last evening, they were called to the rear of the 400 block on Florence avenue, where rubbish which had been thrown on a dump there by residents of the district, caught fire. There was no loss. Fourth ward firemen laid 400 feet of hose and extinguished the smouldering blaze.

Local Man's Stomach Swollen Like Balloon

Recently, a New Castle man stated that he used to feel like a swollen balloon after every meal. He would bloat full of gas and spit up acidous liquids for hours after eating. Had headaches daily. This man is one of the hundreds in this city who now praise the double-acting stomach alkalizer, called WHITE SWALLOW—the new, scientific formula of FOUR different remedies for the relief of stomach distress. This man was amazed when he took WHITE SWALLOW. He eats what he wants now without gas or bloating; has no more headaches and says he feels "like a new man".

Acts At Once

WHITE SWALLOW neutralizes acids in the stomach, expels gas, relieves pain, bloat, swelling and headaches. Relief comes immediately. Not habit-forming like soda, and pleasant to take. It settles the stomach at once.

Costs A Penny

Best of all, WHITE SWALLOW costs so little, less than 1c a dose. So it would be a mistake to go on suffering. We are recommending this new, scientific remedy because we know it has helped so many.

Dip In Pool Almost Tonic For 'Y' Boys

Slippery Rock Low But Boys Don't Mind It—They've Their Own!

While the Slippery Rock stream is quite low these days because of the extremely dry weather, the Camp Fred L. Rentz boys are splashing to their heart's content in the pool which was built for them close to the entrance gate of the grounds.

Rugged cement sacks donated by the Lehigh Portland Cement company are holding up the dam which was erected to back up the pool in which the campers refresh themselves. It is fortunate the pool was built early.

The Sluggers today were leading the camp's mushball league. The Zoogles are ahead in volley ball.

In the regular inspection the Tully and the Katie Rentz cabin boys won the trophy from the Jack Gerson cabin lads.

Almost 250 persons were present for a campfire this week and enjoyed the program which counselors arranged. Frank Baldwin had each cabin do special stunts.

Man Knocked Down But Escapes Injury

Samuel Pascoe, Y. M. C. A., reported late yesterday to police he was driving south on Apple way at noon Thursday and when his truck turned at South street the right rear of the vehicle struck a man standing on the curb. The man, who refused to give his name, was knocked down but was not injured.

Joseph Snyder, Volant, R. D. 3, reported his car was in a collision with an auto driven by Roy Hart of Nemo street at Market and Diamond Ways at 7:30 p. m. last night.

Will Place More Men On Projects On City Streets

Two Hundred Additional To Be Called For W. P. A. Jobs Monday

Two hundred additional men will be called for work on the street projects of the city on Monday morning, Captain F. M. Butler, assistant director of the Works Progress Administration announced today. Not all of the two hundred will be added to the net total of the men now at work, as a number of single workers have been removed under orders of Harrisburg.

The retaining wall at the top of Taylor street, leading into Butler avenue will be completed at the end of this week, and these men will be available for other projects.

As fast as they can be used, men will be added to the airport project near Parkstown Corners and inside of a week this project should be running full.

A number of men will be transferred from highway projects next week to city projects, most of them to street projects, Captain Butler said. The WPA is anxious to get as much work done as possible on the street projects before the fall and winter.

Federal Agents Making A Drive On Bootleggers

Are Now Planning To Get The "Higher-Ups" In Several Organized Syndicates

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Continuing a drive to rid the state of alcohol bootleggers, federal agents in Pennsylvania have under way 20 active investigations involving approximately 500 suspects, it was revealed here by Edward C. Dougherty, district supervisor for the U. S. Alcohol Tax Unit.

Two indictments are pending in Western Pennsylvania involving 56 defendants, Dougherty said, and among other large cases, there are three indictments expected in the central part of the state wherein 67 defendants will be brought to book.

All of the cases involve the manufacture and distribution of illegal liquor by large organized syndicates against which the unit is moving with the utmost vigor, the federal chief disclosed, and most of the prosecutions will be ready for the courts within the next few months.

"We are directing particular attention toward obtaining evidence to convict the real higher-ups of syndicated operations," Dougherty declared. "In 20 conspiracy cases involving in the neighborhood of 500 defendants, many of the latter never go near any illicit distillery or handle personally a drop of illicit liquor. Nevertheless, our investigators are able to connect them with the violations either as supplying the money or otherwise assisting or directing the operations.

"During the past year a number of this type of case has been presented to the courts with very satisfactory results."

"The stills operated by these three syndicates," he said, "were capable of producing 20,000 gallons of alcohol a day, which represented a possible tax evasion of $36,000,000 a year should they have operated that long."

Reiterating a previous announcement that federal officers during the past year seized nearly 16,000 stills and other property totaling $5,500,000 in value, Dougherty said a steady increase in liquor sales by state stores is an indication of the substantial progress being made in eliminating the bootlegger.

"During the first six months of this year," he said, "state liquor stores increased their sales more than 30 per cent over the same period last year. During the fiscal year ending recently the taxes collected from legally manufactured liquor, wines and beer in Pennsylvania amounted to more than $61,000,000. This represents an increase of approximately 25 per cent over the preceding year."

ALICE FAYE O. K. AS 'AMBER BLONDE'

HOLLWOOD, Calif.—Alice Faye was pleased with her new shade of brown hair, which she calls "amber blonde," but she wasn't quite certain what other people thought.

So she decided to let the men of the 20th Century-Fox Studio settle the question. She distributed 300 ballots to actors, directors, writers, cameramen, electricians and carpenters.

The vote was 9 to 1 in the affirmative.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Among the books which delighted my youngest child before he was four years old were "My Fun Book", and "Under the Story Tree", by Mabel Guinnup LaRue. These were read to him of course. He was not taught to read until he entered school. Mrs. LaRue, who is a mother, has just written "Hoot-Owl", being a most delightful account of the early American Indian, which a third grade child can easily read. Wonderful to read to the child of five or six.

As is true of other good Indian books for young children, this is just the thing to put into the hands of a fourth, fifth or sixth grade child who is a very poor reader. While the vocabulary is very, very easy, the content appeals to older children as well as to younger ones. To help a poor reader, put into his hands a book with content and interest of his age or older, but with vocabulary several years younger.

A few more good elementary Indian books which are excellent to help the poor reader beyond the third grade are: "Red Feather", by Margaret E. Morcomb; "Little Eagle", by Deming and Deming; "The Indians in Winter Camp" and "Red People of the Wooded Country", by the same author, and "How the Indians Lived", by Frances R. Dearborn. These are named about in the order of their difficulty.

Book About Nature

Known the world over for her children's books and library work, Frances Jenkins Olcott wrote "Our Wonderful World". It is a treasure house of information about the natural wonders of the world. Of the 130 stories and articles in this book Miss Olcott has written 40. She has Commander Byrd and Amelia Earhart tell us about their rides alone in the clouds. John Ernest Williamson and Doctor William Beebe take us under the sea. We have talks on corals by Dr. Roy Waldo Miner, and with Albert Ramsay we go jewel adventuring. For reading aloud to the child from five to eight or for the child of nine or ten to read alone this book is excellent. While learning facts, the child also has his imagination fired; so does the parent.

By the same author we have a group of 64 Indian tales, "The Red Indian Fairy Book". Also "Bible Stories to Read and Tell", based on the King James version.

My readers who are Jewish parents will be delighted with a recent book, "Sabbath Queen: Fifty-four Bible Talks to the Young", by Rabbi Alexander Alan Steinbach. We Christians will also find it very instructive and inspiring. I have read it from cover to cover, and with great pleasure and profit. It should be of special interest to Sunday school teachers of youths and adults.

SOCIETY BEAUTY TURNS PRODUCER

(International News Service)

NEW YORK—Benay Venuta, San Francisco society girl who last year overcame the handicap of "too much money for show business," by succeeding Ethel Merman as the feminine lead of "Anything Goes," Broadway stage hit, has announced definite entry into the production field of the legitimate stage. She is a niece of George Cameron, publisher.

Federal Agents Making A Drive On Bootleggers

Are Now Planning To Get The "Higher-Ups" In Several Organized Syndicates

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, July 17.—Continuing a drive to rid the state of alcohol bootleggers, federal agents in Pennsylvania have under way 20 active investigations involving approximately 500 suspects, it was revealed here by Edward C. Dougherty, district supervisor for the U. S. Alcohol Tax Unit.

Two indictments are pending in Western Pennsylvania involving 56 defendants, Dougherty said, and among other large cases, there are three indictments expected in the central part of the state wherein 67 defendants will be brought to book.

All of the cases involve the manufacture and distribution of illegal liquor by large organized syndicates against which the unit is moving with the utmost vigor, the federal chief disclosed, and most of the prosecutions will be ready for the courts within the next few months.

"We are directing particular attention toward obtaining evidence to convict the real higher-ups of syndicated operations," Dougherty declared. "In 20 conspiracy cases involving in the neighborhood of 500 defendants, many of the latter never go near any illicit distillery or handle personally a drop of illicit liquor. Nevertheless, our investigators are able to connect them with the violations either as supplying the money or otherwise assisting or directing the operations.

"During the past year a number of this type of case has been presented to the courts with very satisfactory results."

"The stills operated by these three syndicates," he said, "were capable of producing 20,000 gallons of alcohol a day, which represented a possible tax evasion of $36,000,000 a year should they have operated that long."

Reiterating a previous announcement that federal officers during the past year seized nearly 16,000 stills and other property totaling $5,500,000 in value, Dougherty said a steady increase in liquor sales by state stores is an indication of the substantial progress being made in eliminating the bootlegger.

"During the first six months of this year," he said, "state liquor stores increased their sales more than 30 per cent over the same period last year. During the fiscal year ending recently the taxes collected from legally manufactured liquor, wines and beer in Pennsylvania amounted to more than $61,000,000. This represents an increase of approximately 25 per cent over the preceding year."

BAKED EGGS

Put each egg carefully in a buttered dish and cover with seasoned buttered crumbs. Bake until crumbs are brown.

ALICE FAYE O. K. AS 'AMBER BLONDE'

HOLLWOOD, Calif.—Alice Faye was pleased with her new shade of brown hair, which she calls "amber blonde," but she wasn't quite certain what other people thought.

So she decided to let the men of the 20th Century-Fox Studio settle the question. She distributed 300 ballots to actors, directors, writers, cameramen, electricians and carpenters.

The vote was 9 to 1 in the affirmative.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN

Among the books which delighted my youngest child before he was four years old were "My Fun Book", and "Under the Story Tree", by Mabel Guinnup LaRue. These were read to him of course. He was not taught to read until he entered school. Mrs. LaRue, who is a mother, has just written "Hoot-Owl", being a most delightful account of the early American Indian, which a third grade child can easily read. Wonderful to read to the child of five or six.

As is true of other good Indian books for young children, this is just the thing to put into the hands of a fourth, fifth or sixth grade child who is a very poor reader. While the vocabulary is very, very easy, the content appeals to older children as well as to younger ones. To help a poor reader, put into his hands a book with content and interest of his age or older, but with vocabulary several years younger.

A few more good elementary Indian books which are excellent to help the poor reader beyond the third grade are: "Red Feather", by Margaret E. Morcomb; "Little Eagle", by Deming and Deming; "The Indians in Winter Camp" and "Red People of the Wooded Country", by the same author, and "How the Indians Lived", by Frances R. Dearborn. These are named about in the order of their difficulty.

Book About Nature

Known the world over for her children's books and library work, Frances Jenkins Olcott wrote "Our Wonderful World". It is a treasure house of information about the natural wonders of the world. Of the 130 stories and articles in this book Miss Olcott has written 40. She has Commander Byrd and Amelia Earhart tell us about their rides alone in the clouds. John Ernest Williamson and Doctor William Beebe take us under the sea. We have talks on corals by Dr. Roy Waldo Miner, and with Albert Ramsay we go jewel adventuring. For reading aloud to the child from five to eight or for the child of nine or ten to read alone this book is excellent. While learning facts, the child also has his imagination fired; so does the parent.

By the same author we have a group of 64 Indian tales, 'The Red Indian Fairy Book". Also "Bible Stories to Read and Tell", based on the King James version.

My readers who are Jewish parents will be delighted with a recent book, "Sabbath Queen: Fifty-four Bible Talks to the Young", by Rabbi Alexander Alan Steinbach. We Christians will also find it very instructive and inspiring. I have read it from cover to cover, and with great pleasure and profit. It should be of special interest to Sunday school teachers of youths and adults.

NEW YORK, July 17.—Rando-musings: More Manhattan male diets begin—or begin again—after a glance at that 300-pound wax figure in a union suit displayed by the store which deals only in garments for fat men (it's located, oddly enough, in the Bowery—where passersby often don't eat too well) . . . . I asked a lower Third Avenue pawnshop proprietor whether he carried any college fraternity pins—for no particular reason. . . . He had none; but he showed me a tray full of war medals awarded heroes and inscribed "for valor" and things like that. . . . Incidentally, he volunteered the information that his stock had been even larger, but after the bonus and one thing and another many of them were redeemed. . . . Thomas Burke, the English author of "Limehouse Nights," gets crochety if the book, which made his reputation, is mentioned in his presence. . . . Considers it one of his least successful (artistically) productions. . . . It's the same with Milt Gross and his "Nize Baby" of decade-ago best-sellerdom. . . . I mentioned the tome praisefully in this place about four years ago and Milt has been courteous but cool ever since. . . .

Gypsy Rose Lee, the most famous strip dancer in the world, is retiring from burlesk to enter the more exalted purlieus of the "Ziegfeld Follies." . . . The occasion will have all the grave festivities of a Bernhardt's farewell tour. . . . There was even a contest, at Leon and Eddie's, to determine a successor for this illustrious lady, for what will burlesk be without Gypsy? . . . Actually, she is a lass of the most exaggerated offstage modesty and decorum; doesn't drink or smoke, they say, and always blushes when she rounds a windy corner or has to step high for a bus or street-car. . . . Of course Gypsy's "Follies" initiation, with attendant ceremonies, is the inspiration of the press-agents—but her rise can scarcely be attributed to sheer ballyhoo. . . She has about her a curious ethereal—now don't laugh—quality and even a kind of repressed propriety; her abandon is almost genteel. . . . But what a depressing career for a girl! . . . I'd think she'd be bored half to death.

Monty Woolley, the aptly named bewhiskered comedian of the musical, "On Your Toes," is a learned gentleman who was professor of drama at Yale for many year. . . . He got into directing and guided such hits as "The Third Little Show" and "Jubilee." . . . Then he broke down and confessed the most tenderly cherished ambition of all—to act on Broadway. . . . Hence his role of grotesque comedy in the lilting Rodgers-Hart-Abbott fest. . . . Private conviction: that Mr. George Gershwin will retain his niche as the really vital American composer long after more pretentious classicists, including Prof. Deems Taylor, have been forgotten. . . .

Pathos: the pigeon, at the corner of Herald Square and Thirty-second Street, feet firmly imbedded in melting asphalt, fluttering vainly to rise. . . . And the ancient lady who sells newspaper: there, heavily shrouded in a shawl with the temperature at 101, hastening to the bird's rescue. . . . The new Tri-Boro Bridge is a mighty span and the recent ceremonies which opened it to a perspiring public were properly lofty in tone, but with so many billions floating around I see no reason why the East River shouldn't be paved solid. . . Oh, yes, there is one reason: the only way anyone can be made to remain in New York (and what would the town be if no one remained here?) is the awful difficulty of getting out, over the congested bridges or through the crowded Holland Tube. . . . Out-of-towners should visit New York if for no other reason than for the challenge to human ingenuity and patience afforded by the drive across the Queensboro Bridge.

Retail Milk Price Raised To 12 Cents

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17. — The scheduled increase in the price of milk and cream here will go into effect today, Paul B. Martin, secretary of the Greater Pittsburgh Milk Dealers' Association, announced.

Retail milk prices will advance from 11 to 12 cents a quart and from seven to seven and one-half cents a pint, Martin announced. Cream will rise from 14 to 16 cents a pint, he said.

The farmers were granted the price rises at an emergency meeting of milk producers and dealers called when the drought and consequent high cost of feed threatened a milk shortage.

New Castle Store Picnic August 13

Woman Educator Endorses Landon

(International News Service)

TOPEKA, Kan., July 17.—Miss Agnes Samuelson of Des Moines, Ia., state superintendent of schools, has endorsed the attitude of Gov. Alfred M. Landon toward public education and rural schools.

After a conference with the governor, she said:

"I found the governor's interest in rural education very splendid. He understands that problem and it is the problem of the Middle West. He realizes that during the crisis school funds have been considerably reduced, along with other public supported institutions. He believes in 'equal educational opportunity for all', which is our goal."

AROUND CITY HALL

The 10-ton roller rented at a cost of $250 per month, has not yet been put into service.

Council has not yet decided what action the city will take on the complaint registered recently that one side of Hiram Way is high and the other low. This condition, it was pointed out, results, during storms, of water running to the low side of the thoroughfare.

City Engineer Glenn R. Throop stated to council yesterday that in his opinion work on Big Run may not be started by the WPA for two months. Not all the property damage waivers have been secured, City solicitor's time has been monopolized by other legal matters. The city engineer said he could have his plans ready within two weeks.

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 17.—British aviation officials looked forward to early inauguration of a North Atlantic airplane service following announcement by Air Minister Viscount Swinton of a five-year agreement with British Imperial Airways for a weekly New York-Bermuda service, scheduled to begin next autumn.

The British government will provide an annual subsidy of $90,000 for the project and a capital outlay of $172,000 for a flying boat to carry passengers, mail and freight.

After a conference with the governor, she said:

"I found the governor's interest in rural education very splendid. He understands that problem and it is the problem of the Middle West. He realizes that during the crisis school funds have been considerably reduced, along with other public supported institutions. He believes in 'equal educational opportunity for all', which is our goal."

AROUND CITY HALL

The 10-ton roller rented at a cost of $250 per month, has not yet been put into service.

Council has not yet decided what action the city will take on the complaint registered recently that one side of Hiram Way is high and the other low. This condition, it was pointed out, results, during storms, of water running to the low side of the thoroughfare.

City Engineer Glenn R. Throop stated to council yesterday that in his opinion work on Big Run may not be started by the WPA for two months. Not all the property damage waivers have been secured. City solicitor's time has been monopolized by other legal matters. The city engineer said he could have his plans ready within two weeks.

Keystone State To Be Torn By Political Guns

Sharpshooters Storing Up Ammunition To Fire During Coming Presidential Fight

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 17.—Pennsylvania is developing into the nation's political "tinder box" which will be highly combustible by the time the November elections roll around, observers here believe.

For years a rock-ribbed Republican state, little wooed during election years by G. C. P. forces, Pennsylvania was believed definitely in the "doubtful" column this year, and with Democratic leaders making heavy inroads, a hot and heavy battle for the state's 36 electoral votes in the presidential fight this fall is presaged.

So doubtful is Pennsylvania that both parties will train heavy campaign artillery in this direction from now on. In fact, it is anticipated that John D. Hamilton, new Republican chieftain, will be opening Gov Alf M. Landon's campaign in the Pittsburgh district within the next few weeks. This was more than suggested by Pennsylvania G. O. P. leaders at a recent Republican state committee meeting here.

Meanwhile, Gov. George H. Earle, Pennsylvania's first Democratic chief executive within the past 40 years, has announced he will make a political barnstorming trip through every county of the state, taking the stump for President Roosevelt, with the president himself coming into the state late in the summer.

Opposing forces realize that both the farm and industrial element of the state must be courted. Industrial western Pennsylvania has shown a Democratic tint, with the central portions mainly Republican and the eastern sector considered doubtful.

The current special session of the legislature is considered to be sowing much political fodder that will blossom forth before many weeks have passed as a campaign issue in the state.

On May 4, Governor Earle, in proclaiming the program of the session, asked that the emergency business of the state be dispatched sans politics. Instead, however, as the weeks went on, the austere chambers were turned into a political arena with both parties crying "wolf," according to those present throughout the meeting.

Volumes upon volumes of legislative journals have been printed, admittedly containing almost as much political horn-tooting as transacted business. With both factions deadlocked over the relief issue, Governor Earle threatened to take the issue to the people by stumping the districts where Republican senators are up for re-election. It is these Republican senators, Governor Earle charges, who held up relief funds and brought privation to many of the 173,000 families on the state's relief rolls. His accusations were thrown back each time with as much gusto by Republican spokesmen who blamed the Democrats for unnecessary expenditures and waste in both the relief and works programs.

Neither party has given the other credit for realizing what "adequate relief" means.

Social security is another issue expected to be injected into the political battle-fronts of Pennsylvania as a burning campaign issue.

Both parties' national platforms endorse and advocate social security, but, thus far, little progress has been made in the senate toward the passage of the bills to conform with the federal program. The Brancato Mothers' Assistance bill slumbers with a joint conference committee, its passage delayed beyond the federal dead-line for conforming legislation. This caused a loss to the state, administration leaders contended, of at least $600,000.

What will happen to the remainder of the social security and relief program in the emergency session, particularly the unemployment insurance program, will have much to do, it was believed, with the political complexion of Pennsylvania this fall.

Pioneer Hardships To Be Recalled At Folk Lore Carnival

Part Pennsylvania Played In Early History Of The Country To Be Recounted

(International News Service)

LEWISBURG, Pa., July 17.—Pennsylvania, one-time frontier of an embryonic empire, will come into its true own as a center steeped in American tradition on July 30, the opening date of the Pennsylvania Folk Festival which will extend through August 2.

The festival, to be held in Memorial Stadium of Bucknell University here, will be a tournament of songs, dances, and customs, native of Pennsylvania.

"This festival," declared Dr. George G. Korson, director, "has more than a Pennsylvania interest. The first western frontier in this country was in Pennsylvania, first it was the Susquehanna river; then it was pushed to the Alleghenies and finally, after the French and Indian war, it reached Pittsburgh. From that point the vast majority of pioneers who settled in the middle west, the southwest and the far west set forth in their long, perilous journeys, and the original adventurers travelled in the Conestoga wagon, a distinctively Pennsylvania product that was the parent of the later covered wagon."

This year's festival is a result of a laborious search throughout the state for folk lore, and winners of five regional festivals held in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona, Wilkes-Barre and Allentown, will participate here.

FARM PRICES IN STATE NEAR PARITY

HARRISBURG, July 17.—An increase of five points in the index of prices paid Pennsylvania farmers for principal farm products during the thirty days ending June 15 was reported today by J. Hansell French, secretary of agriculture.

This marked improvement in prices at the farm was due to sharp advances in prices for potatoes, hogs and apples, as well as to moderate advances in prices for eggs, wool, butterfat and corn. Wheat, sheep and lamb prices declined.

The index of Pennsylvania farm prices on June 15 was 108, compared with 103 on May 15 and with the pre-war base of 100. The index for the nation was 107 on June 15.

HARRISBURG, July 17.—The demand this year for Pennsylvania certified seed potatoes again exceeded the supply, J. Hansell French, secretary of agriculture, announced today when the Bureau of Plant Industry certified the last of this year's seed for shipment to growers in this and other states.

Potter, Somerset and Cambria growers are planting larger acreages of potatoes for certified seed purposes this year than heretofore.

Bill On Unemployment Insurance System For State Nearing Passage

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 17.—An administration bill, providing for the establishment of an unemployment insurance system for the commonwealth today was in a position for final passage in the state senate.

The measure, reported with amendments from the senate insurance committee earlier in the week, passed second reading in the upper chamber after two moves to amend it further were defeated.

One of the amendment moves, made by Senator Harry Shapiro, R., Philadelphia, would have restored the measure to its original form in several respects, while the other, made by Senator George L. Reed, R. Dauphin, provided an extension until January 15, 1937, of the date the bill would become effective.

As advanced on second reading, the measure provides for the appointment of a new independent commission of five members, one each appointed by the governor, the president pro tem of the senate, the speaker of the house, the auditor general and the state treasurer. Shapiro's proposed amendment would have placed the administration of the measure in the hands of a similar committee, all of whose members would be appointed by the governor, subject to the confirmation of the state senate.

In the form as reported from the senate insurance committee, Shapiro charged, the administration of the unemployment compensation measure "is thrown into the political arena." He also proposed a new civil service feature of the system to keep "the bill out of politics."

Ryan's Estate Goes To Aunt

Slain Liquor Store Bandit Left $231.50. Sister Refuses To Accept

(International News Service)

POTTSVILLE, Pa., July 17.—Administration of the estate of the late Francis J. (Pugsy) Ryan, eastern Pennsylvania desperado recently shot to death in Pittsburgh, today was in the hands of Mrs. Nellie Dallis, of Philadelphia, his aunt.

Letters of administration in the Ryan estate, which amounted to $231.50, the amount found on the gangster's body after Pittsburgh police had fatally wounded him, were granted to Mrs. Dallis at the request of Ryan's sister, Mrs. Alice Golster, Shenandoah.

Mrs. Golster, according to officials, renounced her rights to administer the estate and at her request the aunt was named administratrix.

Ryan, wanted in Ohio as well as in Pennsylvania where he committed acts of terrorism over a period of years, was fatally shot while trying to escape police near Pittsburgh. He died within a few days in a Pittsburgh hospital. He was identified as one of the bandits who robbed a New Castle liquor store in June.

BEST FOR FLOWERS

Vases with wide-mouthed tops are the best for summer garden flowers. Some stores are showing some delightful pottery ones that are two-faced, being white on the outer side and light yellow on the inner. Or you can choose them in white with a deep turquoise blue. Around the foot is found the only decoration, a raised laurel wreath in color.

These good looking containers are about eight or ten inches in height, and are attractive when used in pairs.

Police Head In Pittsburgh Starts Suit For Slander

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—A $50,000 slander suit was filed by superintendent of police Jacob F. Dorsey here today against former traffic inspector Albert E. Florig.

The suit, filed in common pleas court by Attorney J. M. Stoner, asserted a report Florig issued February 20 was a "wicked, malicious, defamatory libel, intended to cause my removal from office."

Florig's report, referred to in the suit, was sent to Dorsey after Florig had been transferred from the East End district.

A fact not commonly known is that the United States public health service is a bureau of the treasury department.

Roxie Long Is Granted Parole

However He Will Begin Serving Sentence On Allegheny County Charge

Rocco Di Pippa, alias Roxie Long, sentenced to the Allegheny county workhouse from Lawrence county, following his conviction here in 1934 on charges of conspiracy to cheat and defraud, in connection with removal of a stock of goods in a new store, was paroled by Judge W. Walter Braham, following the presentation of a petition in court today. However the parole does not mean that Roxie will go free. There is a similar charge against him in the Allegheny county courts, and he will immediately begin serving his time on this charge.

He was brought from the Allegheny county workhouse to the Lawrence county jail in order that testimony might be taken if necessary but the papers were sufficient and none was taken. Roxie will be taken back to the workhouse tomorrow morning.

Bill On Unemployment Insurance System For State Nearing Passage

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, July 17.—An administration bill, providing for the establishment of an unemployment insurance system for the commonwealth today was in a position for final passage in the state senate.

The measure, reported with amendments from the senate insurance committee earlier in the week, passed second reading in the upper chamber after two moves to amend it further were defeated.

One of the amendment moves, made by Senator Harry Shapiro, R., Philadelphia, would have restored the measure to its original form in several respects, while the other, made by Senator George L. Reed, R, Dauphin, provided an extension until January 15, 1937, of the date the bill would become effective.

As advanced on second reading, the measure provides for the appointment of a new independent commission of five members, one each appointed by the governor, the president pro tem of the senate, the speaker of the house, the auditor general and the state treasurer. Shapiro's proposed amendment would have placed the administration of the measure in the hands of a similar committee, all of whose members would be appointed by the governor, subject to the confirmation of the state senate.

In the form as reported from the senate insurance committee, Shapiro charged, the administration of the unemployment compensation measure "is thrown into the political arena." He also proposed a new civil service feature of the system to keep "the bill out of politics."

The university has a student body of over 800, and the courses are civil, electrical, mechanical and chemical engineering, arts and science, agriculture, and physical education. Courses may also be had in medical and law preparatory.

A candidate must have graduated with a scholastic average of 80 or above, and also must have shown in his high school course an athletic record above the average, together with an interest in other high school activities, and civic affairs in the community. The following local committee will make the selection of the three best fitted to represent the county: Dr. W. Fulton Jackson, Fred L. Rentz and Dr. Frank Orth, principal of the New Castle high school. These three candidates will then appear before the scholarship committee of the University of Delaware Alumni at Pittsburgh for final rating, and the one selected will be expected to enter the university in the September term.

The total cost per year at Delaware is about $500, leaving an amount of $150 to be procured by the successful candidate. There are forms of employment for students which will help in part to make up the above if the student is so inclined. A passing mark at the end of each semester must be maintained by the student in order to be eligible for the following semester.

Applicants will apply by letter to Dr. W. Fulton Jackson, North Mercer street, enclosing in the letter a card showing the scholastic record for his four years in high school, a record of his athletic ability and any other activities he has been engaged in, or offices held, either at school or in his community signed by his principal. Bachelor Judge Upholds Man In Heart Balm Suit

(International News Service)

LONDON—English law doesn't expect a man to crawl back to a woman who has told him to "get to hell out and stay there". He is entitled to say "Our engagement is at an end".

So ruled a bachelor judge. Sir Ernest Charles, in giving the verdict to the defendant in a breach of promise action at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

Miss Florence Eugenia Telford, 32-year-old schooldays friend of Christopher Jameson Barnfather, 33, sued him for heart balm.

Barnfather's defense was that during a quarrel Miss Telford told him to "Get to hell out and stay out," and he left.

WOMEN IN AUSTRIA OUTLIVE THE MEN

(International News Service)

VIENNA—Women outlive men in Austria to a remarkable extent. Six female centenarians were recorded by a recent census, whereas not a single hundred-year old man was found.

The oldest person in Austria, is Frau Julia Sonnenberg, 108, once a famous Vienna society beauty. She is said to have repeatedly insisted upon having her hundredth birthday postponed, she preferred to remain 99 for several years.

The famous American clipper ships often spread 40,000 square feet of sail when carrying 2,000 tons of cargo. The Flying Cloud twice made the trip from New York to San Francisco, around Cape Horn in 89 days.

BALKY HORSE GETS FARMER IN TROUBLE; CRUELTY IS ALLEGED

BUTLER, Pa., July 17.—Whether Howard Noll, of Butler R. D. No. 1, "beat, abused and tormented" a 900-pound bay mare while plowing at his farm in Clay township, or used only the common measures for starting a balky horse, will be decided Monday by Alderman Porter Scott.

W. F. Rahiser, Humane Society representative said that Noll beat the horse repeatedly on July 2. Using a whip stock after the whip broke, and twisted a wire around the animal's neck.

In his own defense, Noll admitted he had struck the horse with a light whip but denied beating it. He said he hit it to drive it around rapidly and thus get its mind off whatever was leading it to balk. The defendant also admitted that he had put the wire on the horse's ear to detract its attention, which, he claimed, also was a prescribed method of curing a balky horse.

BEST REMEDY FOR Bladder Weakness

Thompson's Barosma Tablets are the very best remedy I have ever tried in my case of bladder weakness. I can never say too much for them. I had suffered many years before taking them," writes R. L. Hurd, 991 Superior St., Detroit.

The kidneys are seldom free from poisons. Clean them out and backache, sidecache, and bladder trouble go. The kidneys are the great filters of the blood. If the kidneys are clogged you should clean them out at once with Thompson's Barosma Tablets and not allow the poison to pass into the system.

Detroit Tigers Bench Simmons

Veteran Outfielder In "Slump", Indians Win Another Game

PIRATES FOLD UP BEFORE GIANTS

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, July 17—The benching of Al Simmons by the Tigers yesterday is but a foretaste of what is to happen to many another veteran before the season ends.

Every team in the majors is on the lookout for young blood and many a famous baseball name will be missing when the roll is called next spring.

Veterans On Spot.

Simmons is not the only veteran nearing the end of his string. Off hand, one can name Manush, Bottomley, Haas, Grimm, Terry, Babe Herman, Frisch Koenig Goslin, Thevenow Dykes and others. Some of these are still playing great ball but time has put the finger on all of them.

The Simmons of old would have been a great help to the Tigers yesterday but as it was Johnny Broaca held them to eight hits and the Yanks beat them 5 to 2. The defeat dropped the Tigers to third place, ten games back of the pace-setting Yanks.

The Red Sox lost the first game of a double header with Lefty Grove—who is no callow youngster himself—6 to 3, despite Jimmy Foxx's 25th homer. However, Jimmy's 26th homer was the deciding punch in giving the Red Sox the nightcap, 5 to 4.

Indians Win.

The Indians continued on a rampage by blanking the Athletics, 7-0, behind Johnny Allen's five-hit pitching.

The White Sox, who are making serious gestures toward a climb into the first division, outslugged the Senators, 9 to 7.

The Giants used five pitchers and Mel Ott's 17th homer to get a 7-6 nod over the Pirates. The Pirates jumped on Gumbert for all their runs in the first three heats, but Gabler, Coffman, Castleman and Schumacher held them at bay while the Giants pecked away at Blanton, Brown and Birkofer until Ott put over the winning punch.

Cubs Upset Bees.

The Cubs took the surprising Bees in a 1-0 ten-inning classic in Chicago. Ben Cantwell gave the Cubs only seven hits over the full route but Lon Warneke was even better—he gave the Bees only four. Jurges' double and Billy Herman's single spilled the beans for Ben.

Dizzy Dean tried to come back too soon after being skulled by a line drive and the lowly Phils shelled him in five panels. After Diz came Jesse Haines, the oldest bird in the league, and Flint Rhem, the kidnaped kid, who was a rookie long years ago. A homer by Leo Norris off Dean with awo aboard started the Quakers on the road to a 6 to 3 triumph.

With elaborate ceremonies at three fields, the second half of the City Softball league season will be ushered in tonight. The games have been set to start at 6 o'clock, with a 6:15 deadline.

The feature tonight will no doubt be the Noblis and Box Factory at the Gaston Park field. Here William Wignall will throw the first ball and one of the league officials will be on hand to receive it. The umpires for this game will be Johnnie Santangelo and Keith Van Fossann. Manager Ray Cutler will have a fast Noblis team on the field, it is reported.

Up at Castle Beach the Croton Progressives will play the Radiators, their rivals. Frank Isabella and Titus Month will handle the game as umpires. The Bonnetts will go to the B. & O. field to meet the Knights of St. Vitus tonight, with Mike DiThomas and Joe Alello doing the umpiring.

Union A. C. Tops West Side 5 To 1

Paul Morrison Hurls One-Hit Game As Union A. C. Take League Game

Paul Morrison, former Union high star athlete, almost entered the baseball hall of fame last night at the Lee avenue field when he let the West Side Tigers down with a lone hit in the seven-inning league game which was taken by the Unions 5 to 1.

Morrison on his way to fame fanned nine of the West Siders. Hannon on the hill for the losers pitched a fine game also, allowing eight hits and whiffing nine men also. Phillips and Stevenson were the feature batters of the game.

Wampum To Play Bessemer Tonight

It was announced by Jim Martin today that the Wampum team will play at Bessemer tonight in a county league postponed game at 6:00 o'clock. The umpires originally assigned to this game are asked to take notice of the playing of the game tonight.

Due to league umpires failing to appear and arbitrate games President Alec Samuels has ruled that if agreed to, managers of opposing teams may select umpires from spectators and the game will be considered a league game.

League officials regret the departure of West Pittsburg from the league, due to a misinterpretation of rules. However, league officials state they believe that a team must play out their league schedule before being declared first half winners.

It was hoped by league moguls that either West Side Firemen or Ryantown would take over the franchise vacated when West Pittsburg was declared ineligible for the league. However, neither team has made a move to join the circuit.

Henry Marshall, Hillsville outfielder, is one of the outstanding outfielders in the league. He also plays for St. Stanislaus in the Northern Ohio league. He is making a big hit in that circuit, also. J. Pepe and Cracraft, pitcher and catcher, for Hillsville are also members of the St. Stanislaus club.

Bessemer won two or more times from each team excepting West Pittsburg to win the first half flag. Bessemer was beaten twice by West Pittsburg, turned the tables once on West Pittsburg and also played a deadlock with them. West Pittsburg would have had to beat Bessemer and Hillsville to clinch the first half, according to Secretary James Martin.

League managers and scorers have been negligent in submitting scores and items of interest for publication. Some of the results submitted were compiled in such a way they did not total and names were illegible. There was no score turned in on the Mahoning-Bessemer game at Mahoning. Bessemer won 15 to 1. Dick Nord held Mahoning to four hits and fanned 10 batters.

Baseball is not paying in Lawrence county. Not one league team has shown a profit, it is reported.

Carnegie-Illinois A. S. & T. P. employes team is playing on their own field—the site of the old Rosena furnace. The field is not yet in good condition, players report.

The league is planning a benefit game between Bessemer and League All-Stars for Eisesser, West Pittsburg player, who broke a leg during the Wampum-West Pittsburg game. The fans will select the players. The game will be played on the A. S. & T. P. field. Fans should send their selections to Secretary James Martin, secretary, Bessemer.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Barney T. Welsh of Rockland, Md. defending champion in the West Virginia tennis tournament, strode ahead ahead in his conquests Thursday, beating Lieutenant Stanley K. Robinson, Anacostia, Va. Robinson defaulted the quarter-final match with Welsh, after losing the first set and taking the second by scores of 6-4, 4-6. In another quarter-final match, Jake Hess, Jr., Houston, Tex., eliminated Sam Cohn, of Beckley, a big threat in all mountain state tournaments, 6-1, 6-0.

Carl Tremaine, once a great fighter, has passed across the Divide. The former bantamweight died several days ago at Cleveland, according to reports reaching here. There is no question that at one time he was the peer of 'em all, although he did not wear the championship. Any time Tremaine crawled through the ropes the fans were sure of seeing a fight. If an opponent didn't want to fight Tremaine made him fight.

Mct Bill Lion, matchmaker for the grapplers last night and that chap declared that if the Great Mephisto, former light-heavyweight champion, should win here Monday night efforts will be made to arrange a match between Ali Baba, former heavyweight champion and the Great Mephisto, who wrestles Gorilla Grubmeyer here Monday. McNeill Shows Lots Of Stamina

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—Metropolitan tennis fans marvelled today at the stamina of Don McNeill, of Kenyon College, Ohio, and Oklahoma City, who is playing in two tournaments simultaneously here.

After gaining a semi-final bracket by defeating Charles T. Mattmann of New York in the junior championships at Forrest Hills 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, McNeill dashed over to Jackson Heights and polished off Simon Miller in the eastern clay court championships, 6-1, 13-11.

Morey Lewis of Texarkana, Ark., McNeill's college buddy, also gained a semi-final berth at Forest Hills by defeating Henry Daniels of Rye, N. Y., 6-4, 6-2.

Grubmeyer To Meet Mephisto

Former Circus Performer Now Wrestler Here Monday Night

SWEDE NELSON TO WRESTLE INDIAN

And now that is everything is tranquil along the Centennial front the wrestlers are coming here Monday night to stage what they expect to be one of the best shows that could be arranged for the city. With George McLeod and Chief Sunoco also known as Sunchka in the main bout there will be plenty who will want to see the Great Mephisto, former light-heavyweight champion tackle Gorilla Grubmeyer in the semi-final. Swede Nelson will meet Cherokee Charlie and Otto Eckener will oppose Morrie Suber in other bouts. The show will start at Centennial field at 8:30 p.m. Monday.

Sunoco's huge bulk, 312 pounds and agility proved too much for the Russian, Leon Grandovitch and McLeod gave Frank Sexton quite a tussle until both were counted out by Referee Dickerhoff last Monday night. The Great Mephisto is said to be one of the fastest and cleanest wrestlers in the game. He got his name plus a title "The Flaming Red Devil" due to his days with a circus when he saturated an asbestos suit with gasoline, had it touched off with a match then dove into a tank of water. He is to meet Gorilla Grubmeyer whom Swede Nelson beat here recently.

The Swede, conqueror of Jack Conley will take on Jesse Joy, a former Drake University athlete. Nelson has shown himself a capable wrestler, fast worker and quick to take advantage of the breaks in the exhibitions. Joy is an Indian who has had for ring souvenirs, a broken right arm, suffered in boxing, a broken right foot received when a flying hook scissors went awry and a pair of affected eyes, received when he was socked on the side of the head. In addition to being a wrestler Cherokee Charlie or Joy as he is also known is a crack shot with the bow and arrow.

Detroit Tigers Bench Simmons

Veteran Outfielder In "Slump", Indians Win Another Game

PIRATES FOLD UP BEFORE GIANTS

NEW YORK, July 17—The benching of Al Simmons by the Tigers yesterday is but a foretaste of what is to happen to many another veteran before the season ends.

The Cubs took the surprising Bees in a 1-0 ten-inning classic in Chicago. Ben Cantwell gave the Cubs only seven hits over the full route but Lon Warneke was even better—he gave the Bees only four. Jurges' double and Billy Herman's single spilled the beans for Ben.

Dizzy Dean tried to come back too soon after being skulled by a line drive and the lowly Phils shelled him in five panels. After Diz came Jesse Haines, the oldest bird in the league, and Flint Rhem, the kidnaped kid, who was a rookie long years ago. A homer by Leo Norris off Dean with awo aboard started the Quakers on the road to a 6 to 2 triumph.

Teams Ready To Start Second-Half Of Softball League Season

With elaborate ceremonies at three fields, the second half of the City Softball league season will be ushered in tonight. The games have been set to start at 6 o'clock, with a 6:15 deadline.

The feature tonight will no doubt be the Nobils and Box Factory at the Gaston Park field. Here William Wignall will throw the first ball and one of the league officials will be on hand to receive it. The umpires for this game will be Johnnie Santangelo and Keith Van Fossann. Manager Ray Cutler will have a fast Nobils team on the field, it is reported.

Up at Castle Beach the Croton Progressives will play the Radiators, their rivals. Frank Isabella and Titus Month will handle the game as umpires. The Bonnetts will go to the B. & O. field to meet the Knights of St. Vitus tonight, with Mike DiThomas and Joe Aiello doing the umpiring.

Paul Morrison Hurls One-Hit Game As Union A. C. Take League Game

Paul Morrison, former Union high star athlete, almost entered the baseball hall of fame last night at the Lee avenue field when he let the West Side Tigers down with a lone hit in the seven-inning league game which was taken by the Unions 5 to 1.

Morrison on his way to fame fanned nine of the West Siders. Hannon on the hill for the losers pitched a fine game also, allowing eight hits and whiffing nine men also. Phillips and Stevenson were the feature batters of the game.

Wampum To Play Bessemer Tonight

It was announced by Jim Martin today that the Wampum team will play at Bessemer tonight in a county league postponed game at 6:00 o'clock. The umpires originally assigned to this game are asked to take notice of the playing of the game tonight.

Due to league umpires failing to appear and arbitrate games President Alec Samuels has ruled that if agreed to, managers of opposing teams may select umpires from spectators and the game will be considered a league game.

League officials regret the departure of West Pittsburg from the league, due to a misinterpretation of rules. However, league officials state they believe that a team must play out their league schedule before being declared first half winners.

It was hoped by league moguls that either West Side Firemen or Ryantown would take over the franchise vacated when West Pittsburg was declared ineligible for the league. However, neither team has made a move to join the circuit.

Henry Marshall, Hillsville outfielder, is one of the outstanding outfielders in the league. He also plays for St. Stanislaus in the Northern Ohio league. He is making a big hit in that circuit, also. J. Pepe and Cracraft, pitcher and catcher, for Hillsville are also members of the St. Stanislaus club.

Bessemer won two or more times from each team excepting West Pittsburg to win the first half flag. Bessemer was beaten twice by West Pittsburg, turned the tables once on West Pittsburg and also played a deadlock with them. West Pittsburg would have had to beat Bessemer and Hillsville to clinch the first half, according to Secretary James Martin.

League managers and scorers have been negligent in submitting scores and items of interest for publication. Some of the results submitted were compiled in such a way they did not total and names were illegible. There was no score turned in on the Mahoning-Bessemer game at Mahoning. Bessemer won 15 to 1. Dick Nord held Mahoning to four hits and fanned 10 batters.

Baseball is not paying in Lawrence county. Not one league team has shown a profit, it is reported.

Carnegie-Illinois A. S. & T. P. employes team is playing on their own field—the site of the old Rosena furnace. The field is not yet in good condition, players report.

The league is planning a benefit game between Bessemer and League All-Stars for Elsesser, West Pittsburg player, who broke a leg during the Wampum-West Pittsburg game. The fans will select the players. The game will be played on the A. S. & T. P. field. Fans should send their selections to Secretary James Martin, secretary, Bessemer.

P. N. A.-Indies Play Tonight

The Polish National Alliance baseball team will play the Lawrence Indies tonight at the Cedar street field at 6 o'clock. This is not a league game. Manager Burke will probably use "Cab" Mrozek on the rubber. Masajada will heave them for the Indies.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Barney T. Welsh of Rockland, Md. defending champion in the West Virginia tennis tournament, strode ahead ahead in his conquests Thursday, beating Lieutenant Stanley K. Robinson, Anacostia, Va. Robinson defaulted the quarter-final match with Welsh, after losing the first set and taking the second by scores of 6-4, 4-6. In another quarter-final match, Jake Hess, Jr., Houston, Tex., eliminated Sam Cohn, of Beckley, a big threat in all mountain state tournaments, 6-1, 6-0.

Carl Tremaine, once a great fighter, has passed across the Divide. The former bantamweight died several days ago at Cleveland, according to reports reaching here. There is no question that at one time he was the peer of 'em all, although he did not wear the championship. Any time Tremaine crawled through the ropes the fans were sure of seeing a fight. If an opponent didn't want to fight Tremaine made him fight.

Met Bill Lion, matchmaker for the grapplers last night and that chap declared that if the Great Mephisto, former light-heavyweight champion, should win here Monday night efforts will be made to arrange a match between Ali Baba, former heavyweight champion and the Great Mephisto, who wrestles Gorilla Grubmeyer here Monday. Morrie Suber, light-heavyweight, was examined last night by a local doctor and pronounced in shape for Otto Eckener, Monday.

McNeill Shows Lots Of Stamina

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 17.—Metropolitan tennis fans marvelled today at the stamina of Don McNeill, of Kenyon College, Ohio, and Oklahoma City, who is playing in two tournaments simultaneously here.

After gaining a semi-final bracket by defeating Charles T. Mattmann of New York in the junior championships at Forrest Hills 6-3, 4-6, 6-4, McNeill dashed over to Jackson Heights and polished off Simon Miller in the eastern clay court championships, 6-1,13-11.

Morey Lewis of Texarkana, Ark., McNeill's college buddy, also gained a semi-final berth at Forest Hills by defeating Henry Daniels of Rye, N. Y., 6-4, 6-2.

Grubmeyer To Meet Mephisto

SWEDE NELSON TO WRESTLE INDIAN

And now that is everything is tranquil along the Centennial front the wrestlers are coming here Monday night to stage what they expect to be one of the best shows that could be arranged for the city. With George McLeod and Chief Sunoco also known as Sunooka in the main bout there will be plenty who will want to see the Great Mephisto, former light-heavyweight champion tackle Gorilla Grubmeyer in the semi-final. Swede Nelson will meet Cherokee Charlie and Otto Eckener will oppose Morrie Suber in other bouts. The show will start at Centennial field at 8:30 p. m. Monday.

Sunoco's huge bulk, 318 pounds and agility proved too much for the Russian, Leon Grandovitch and McLeod gave Frank Sexton quite a tussle until both were counted out by Referee Dickerhoff last Monday night. The Great Mephisto is said to be one of the fastest and cleanest wrestlers in the game. He got his name plus a title "The Flaming Red Devil" due to his days with a circus when he saturated an asbestos suit with gasoline, had it touched off with a match then dove into a tank of water. He is to meet Gorilla Grubmeyer whom Swede Nelson beat here recently.

The Swede, conqueror of Jack Conley will take on Jesse Joy, a former Drake University athlete. Nelson has shown himself a capable wrestler, fast worker and quick to take advantage of the breaks in the exhibitions. Joy, is an Indian who has had for ring souvenirs, a broken right arm, suffered in boxing, a broken right foot received when a flying hook scissors went awry and a pair of affected eyes, received when he was socked on the side of the head. In addition to being a wrestler Cherokee Charlie or Joy as he is also known is a crack shot with the bow and arrow.

Market Soars To New Levels

Stock Market Advance Today Sends Some Of Leading Issues Up Five Points

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service

NEW YORK, July 17.—The stock market shot into new high ground for the year today with gains running to 5 points.

New 1936 peaks were made by Allied Chemical, DuPont, Kennecott, Pullman, Eastman Kodak and Philip Morris, the latter soaring more than 5 points at one time.

A feature of second hour dealings was a more than 4 point runup in General Steel Castings preferred, which followed a gain of 5 points yesterday. This helped rail equipments, a group of which hold 97 per cent of General Steel's common stock.

Rails were buoyant in anticipation of a new weekly high for the year in car loadings, to be reported later in the day. Steels and motors were moderately improved.

Grains continued strong, but cotton lost ground. Bonds, with the exception of U. S. governments, were higher.

Legion Juniors Will Play Warren

League Match Will Be Staged At George Washington Field, Saturday Afternoon

New Castle's American Legion Junior team will play Warren, O., American Legion Juniors at George Washington field, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a league tilt.

While the locals are out of the race for state honors, they still have some league games to play.

For the second year in succession they were eliminated by Sharon, the games in the title series being regular slugging matches, both teams having used all of their hurlers in an effort to win. The score of the final contest was 12-9.

Thursday evening, Sharon went to Freeport and defeated the team from that place in continuing their effort toward the state title, winning by a score 10-3, so it will be seen that the Mercer county boys have a real team this year, one that may get places.

Lewis And Gainer Bout Postponed

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—An injured left eye suffered by John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, today necessitated a week's postponement of the Lewis-Al Gainer bout, originally scheduled for Thursday night.

Upon arrival here yesterday Lewis was taken to Mercy hospital and examined by a state boxing commission physician. He was advised to take another week's rest before going into training for the battle.

"I don't want to go in there with a bad eye and face the possibility of having it opened and lose on a technical knockout in a couple of rounds," Lewis said.

When an unpopular candidate begins to hand out campaign cigars his motives are obvious—he's just laying down a smoke screen.

ELLWOOD CITY, July 17.—Vice President H. S. Smith presided at the weekly meeting of the Ellwood City Rotary club Thursday evening in the First Presbyterian church. Harold Burns officiated as song leader with Robert Stevenson as supply pianist.

Harold Seidel had the program and introduced Judge Walter Braham as the speaker of the evening. Judge Braham chose as the subject of his address "Changing Law". He said that real law was a changing thing, keeping pace with the changing conditions under which people live. As soon as any law became static it became obsolete. True law is discovered out of the needs and desires of people. It is frustration to try to impose upon a people a law which seriously goes contrary to the desires of that people. The judge contrasted the present confused situation in English legal procedure in regard to world affairs with the clear and prompt action in Italy and said that, in the long run, the more democratic expression of the will of all the people in England would outlast the domination of dictatorship in Italy. Judge Braham expressed confidence in the law making provisions in our country. He said that it took time to bring about the best legislation and counseled patience with the seeming confusion at present with the enactments of congress and the declarations of the Supreme Court in contradiction. The address was timely and tended to inspire confidence in the development of law within our country.

NEW YORK, July 17.—The stock market shot into new high ground for the year today with gains running to 5 points.

New 1936 peaks were made by Allied Chemical, DuPont, Kennecott, Pullman, Eastman Kodak and Philip Morris, the latter soaring more than 5 points at one time.

A feature of second hour dealings was a more than 4 point runup in General Steel Castings preferred, which followed a gain of 5 points yesterday. This helped rail equipments, a group of which hold 97 per cent of General Steel's common stock.

Rails were buoyant in anticipation of a new weekly high for the year in car loadings, to be reported later in the day. Steels and motors were moderately improved.

Grains continued strong, but cotton lost ground. Bonds, with the exception of U. S. governments, were higher.

Legion Juniors Will Play Warren

League Match Will Be Staged At George Washington Field, Saturday Afternoon

New Castle's American Legion Junior team will play Warren, O., American Legion Juniors at George Washington field, Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock in a league tilt.

While the locals are out of the race for state honors, they still have some league games to play.

For the second year in succession they were eliminated by Sharon, the games in the title series being regular slugging matches, both teams having used all of their hurlers in an effort to win. The score of the final contest was 12-9.

Thursday evening, Sharon went to Freeport and defeated the team from that place in continuing their effort toward the state title, winning by a score 19-3, so it will be seen that the Mercer county boys have a real team this year, one that may get places.

LIQUOR STORE BANDIT ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY

Thompson Is Brought Back To New Castle From Pittsburgh, Last Night

Harry Thompson, alleged liquor store robber, was returned here late Thursday by State Trooper McCullough, City Detective John Young and county authorities and at a hearing on a charge of armed robbery before Squire James C. Brice last night pleaded guilty. He was held without bail in the county jail for court action.

Thompson was with Frank Ryan when the Produce street liquor establishment was robbed recently of about $100. Ryan later was shot and killed when he attempted with Thompson to escape from a Ben Avon policeman. Thompson surrendered recently to Pittsburgh police.

He was held on a warrant sworn to by State Policeman Harry Stinnett in which he was charged with the liquor store robbery. Pittsburgh police investigated his alleged activities at Pittsburgh and Thursday turned him over to the custody of the local authorities.

Thompson told Police Chief Ralph Criswell here that he met Ryan in a beer saloon in Pittsburgh and after an acquaintance of three days Ryan proposed they rob the New Castle store.. They armed themselves. Thompson is said to have confessed and they held up the place.

They travelled south over the West Pittsburg road. They were lost on the road and asked a man in a horse drawn vehicle as to the direction of Pittsburgh. He said he could not direct them. Criswell claims Thompson informed him and they drove "blind" but managed to get into Pittsburgh.

When pursued by the Ben Avon policeman Ryan told Thompson to jump from the car, according to Criswell. He leaped from the right side and Ryan from the left side of the car . Thompson said he heard the shots but did not witness the fatal wounding of his bandit comrade, he is said to have told the chief. He fled from the scene and surrendered later.

Police-Firemen Have Two Bosses

"Just Who Is The Boss", Ask Pittsburgh Police And Firemen Today

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 17.—Pittsburgh's bewildered police and firemen still had two bosses today as the result of Mayor William N. McNair's thus far unavailing attempts to oust Thomas A. Dunn as safety director.

Hizzoner's safety director No. 5, Magistrate George H. Beubauer, was holding office, apparently until council gets together again for a meeting and throws him out as they did the mayor's previous appointees.

The embattled Dunn, refusing to recognize the mayor's right to fire him, held his fort protected by detectives.

Demonstrators Placed In Jail

(International News Service)

CAMDEN, N. J., July 17.—Augmented police details today guarded against renewed violence after the most bitter battle of the three-weeks strike of RCA Manufacturing employes here landed 123 demonstrators in jail.

Approximately 5,000 workers who refused to leave their jobs were victims of the attack of 2,000 former colleagues as they left the plant, authorities said. Despite police interference, the picketers, augmented by 500 sympathizers, were accused of heckling and mauling men and women coming from the plant. Booked on riot charges the prisoners were scheduled to be given hearings today.
